THE STOCK MARKETS

DULL NEAR THE CLOSE

DECLINES SELDOM SIGNIFICANT

DUBLIN

Trading was of moderate dimensions on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, and there was continued support for most local securities, and a firm tone was evident in most groups.

Home Government Funds enjoyed further strong support, and the 5 p.c. Second National Loan advanced 25/- to 110, while 4 p.c. Exchequer Bonds gained a point at 104. The Third National Loan hardened to 105, but Financial Agreement Loan eased to 100. 4½ p.c. Land Bonds rose 5/- to 107⅜, and 4 p.c. Land Bonds added a fraction at 100¼.

British Funds were dull, and 3½ p.c. War Loan relapsed 11/3 to 100¾. Hibernians shaded off to 8⅛, but Munster and Leinsters were buyers without effect at 90/-.

Guinness units closed above the worst, but were still a few pence lower at 71/6. Rails were in neglect, but Dublin Tram Ord. on good buying improved to 8/10½ and the Pref. moved up to 20/-. Alliance Gas Ord. firmed up to 22/6 x.d.

Ranks (Ireland) Pref. tended higher, and Carroll Pref. were raised 1/- to 24/-. Sunbeam Wolsey Ord. were in keen request and spurted 2/- to 31/-. Ever Ready (Ireland) Ord. declined to 8/-, but Irish Tanners Ord. hardened to 8/1½. Imperial Tobacco Ord. were dealt in at 94/6.

LONDON MONEY MARKET

Although the damage to branch banks caused by the air raids inevitably resulted in some additional troubles to the London offices of the clearing Scottish and other banks, there was no sign of serious dislocation. The major difficulty was caused by the delay in the delivery of provincial mails, as a result of which the banks were not in a position to ascertain their cash positions at the usual time. This difficulty had the effect of curtailing the demand for bills on clearing bank account during the morning, but towards the close supplies of credit proved to be so ample that bill market activity was resumed on a moderate scale.

At no time during the day was any real difficulty experienced in obtaining overnight loans. These were readily available both from clearing banks and outside quarters on the usual terms.

Very little interest was shown in the silver market, and prices were fixed without change, spot at 23 3/16d. per ounce and forward at 23⅛d. per ounce.

The foreign exchanges were quiet and uninteresting.

IRISH BUTTER STOCKS AT THE END OF AUGUST

The following table, which has been compiled by the Department of Agriculture from returns furnished under the Dairy Produce Act, 1931, shows the quantity of butter held on 31st ultimo in all public cold stores in Eire and at the premises of manufacturers of creamery and factory butter and principal merchants. The figures do not include the day-to-day stocks in the hands of shopkeepers:—

	Creamery Butter. cwt.	Factory and Other Butter cwt.
Held in Public Cold Stores for (a) Creamery Proprietors	3,899	—
(b) Other Persons	20,933	2,963
Held at Creameries	21,390	—
Held at Merchants' Premises and Butter Factories	1,864	3,350
Totals on August 31, 1940	48,086	6,313
Totals on August 15, 1940	33,317	6,409

In the period from the 16th to 31st August the production of creamery butter was approximately 51,831 cwt., and the quantity stated to have been exported was 15,071 cwt. Public cold stores received 18,448 cwt., and the withdrawals amounted to 5,212 cwt., leaving a net movement of 13,236 cwt. of creamery butter into public cold stores.

LONDON QUIET

As might have been expected in view of the latest developments in the air war, the London Stock markets opened the week very quietly, but while there were few serious business inquiries, underlying sentiment was not noticeably disturbed, and the general inactivity was, to a considerable extent, due to the fact that the attendance of dealers was below normal.

For the greater part of the session prices ruled steady at their previous closing rates, and although scattered selling caused slight dullness towards the end final declines in Industrial and Gilt-edged Securities seldom assumed significant proportions. Most of the available demand was centred in Kaffirs, which again showed a number of firm spots among the dividend-payers.

Initial dealing in Gilt-edged witnessed little movement in prices, but with virtually no buying in progress the market was unable to withstand modest offering later in the session, and quotations weakened under the lead of Old War Loan, which showed a net loss of 3/16 at 101⅜. Exceptionally, I.F.S. Land Bonds moved up to 106½. India Stocks were barely mentioned, and in idle conditions most Dominion and Colonial issues went through the session without alteration.

The Foreign section was completely neglected, and jobbers found it unnecessary to make anything but trifling changes in values.

Not unnaturally, British Rails continued quiet pending the fares inquiry, but a few buyers were in evidence, and the day's movements were mostly in favour of holders. L.M.S. Preferences were among the issues picked out for support.

HALT TO ADVANCE IN INDUSTRIALS

NUMEROUS LOSSES

In the Industrial Market little attempt was made to enter into fresh business, and, naturally, a halt was called in the upward movement. Although easier prices prevailed in most sections, the undertone was described as steady in the circumstances. Here and there a few supporting orders were received. Rolls Royce, for instance, hardened to 3 7/16 on further consideration of the Chairman's remarks at the meeting. Thornycrofts, J. Lyons and Bovril Deferred were other firm spots.

Iron, Coal and Steel shares generally receded slightly; Swan Hunters eased to 25/6 and Vickers to 13/-. Electricals were fairly well maintained, though British Insulated gave way 1/16 to 3⅝, and Generals shed 3d. to 69/6.

As regards Breweries, South African Ord. improved to 94/-, but Charringtons weakened to 46/- and Meuxs to 17/6.

Aircrafts ruled fairly steady, but Motors had a dull appearance. A.E.C. sagged to 25/9, Fords to 15/9, and Standard to 11/9.

Apart from Gallahers, which strengthened to 3⅞, the Tobacco leaders lost ground. "Bats" declined 3/32 to 3 13/16, Carreras "A" 1/16 to 4 1/16, with Godfrey Phillips 1/16 down at 1 3/16, and "Imps" the turn easier at 4¾.

In the Stores group, Woolworths were marked down 1/- to 57/6, with Marks and Spencer 6d. easier at 36/9, and Great Universals 3d. easier at 5/3. Provision shares were firm, though Tate and Lyle receded to 44/6.

In other directions, Cable and Wireless issues fell back, with the Ord. and Pref. losing 1½ at 49 and 85, respectively. Associated British Pictures were marked down 1/- to 5/- on the fall in profits and the absence of a dividend on the Ord. shares. Dunlops declined 1/- to 28/9, Imperial Chemicals 10½d. to 26/-, Murex 1/16 to 3 13/32, Michael Narin 1/16 to 1 15/16, Spillers 1/16 to 2 13/16, United Molasses 1/- to 19/6, Courtaulds 6d. to 28/3, and J. and P. Coats 6d. to 29/-. British Match, Boots Drug, Oxygens, "Emmies," Lever and Unilever, Pinchin Johnson, Ranks, Turner and Newall, and Hudson's Bays were all a few pence easier.

LITTLE BUSINESS

HOW MINES, OILS AND RUBBERS FARED

It was not unexpected, in view of the events of the week-end, that scarcely any business would be transacted in the Mining market yesterday. Occasionally withdrawal of support caused minor declines. The Kaffir market hardly opened. Grootvlei, however, managed to put on a fraction to 4¼, but most other quotable movements were downward. West Africans lost their former firmness, Bibiani falling 6d. to 16/6 and Ashanti 1/32 to 2 3/16.

Attempted sales in the Diamond market caused small losses in Anglo Trusts at 11/16, while "Casts" at 7/- and De Beers Deferred at 3⅞ were also finally lower.

There was not generally much doing in Base Metal descriptions, but one or two of the Rhodesian Coppers failed to hold entirely last week's gains. Thus Rhokanas weakened ⅛ to 8 and R.S.T. 3d. to 9/6, while Rhoanglo, Roan and Selection were also a shade lower. Tin shares and Lead Zincs, on the other hand, did not vary.

Taken as a whole, the Oil share market stood up well to the air attacks on London, and the firmness of the closing days of last week were little impaired. The volume of business was reduced in most directions, but the tone of the market left little room for complaint, and only a few slight and irregular price changes were finally recorded. "Shells," which eased at one period to 1 27/32, rallied to close unchanged at 1⅞. The 7 p.c. Pref. hardened to 24/9. Anglo-Iranians kept around 1 15/32 throughout the day. The 8 p.c. Prefs. weakened to 22/6, but the 9 p.c. Prefs. improved to 21/-. Burmahs fell 1/32 to 2¼. Lobitos declined 1/16 to 1 7/16 and United British of Trinidad to 7/6, but Anglo-Ecuadorians left off firm at 15/9.

Despite the stepping up of the quota for August to December from 85 to 90 p.c. and the improvement in the commodity, interest in the Rubber share market was again at a very low ebb. The undertone, however, remained steady, and very few alterations took place in prices.

WOOL

BRADFORD.—Owing to accumulation of stocks of tops there has been further curtailment of activity in the earlier processes. Manufacturers, especially in woollen section, are fairly well employed, either for Government purposes or for export. There has been no further change in quotations for yarns, and market is now steady.

LONDON METALS MARKET

TIN weak on pressure to sell. Officially, quotations were reduced by 105/- to 120/- per ton for cash and 75/- to 80/- forward on balance. Standard cash quoted £250 to £251, three months £253 to £253 10/-, settlement price £250. Turnover 250 tons: cash at £252 to £250, three months £255 to £252 10/- and £252 15/-. East nominally £253 to £255. After the close of the market 10 tons were sold: cash £250, forward £251 10/- per ton. Market again easier for forward, but unchanged spot. ANTIMONY dull. English Regulus spot 99 p.c. £94 to £95, foreign do. £92 to £93 per ton.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

HEAVY CLOSE AND LONG LIST OF LOSSES

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Monday.

The leading stocks wilted with fresh apprehension over the air attacks on England, as precautionary cashing in on last week's rally overbalanced pleasing domestic developments, such as the American Iron and Steel Institute's estimate of steel activity, which was the highest since last December; the upward revision of railway earnings prospects, the possibility that Washington will complete the draft legislation this week and excess profits tax legislation very soon. The turnover of 590,000 shares comprised 710 issues, of which only 49 advanced and 559 declined.

The opening was easy. Early trading was moderately active, with week-end selling orders inspired by the intensification of the aerial warfare, giving evidence of the growth of caution and a slight uneasiness. The decline broadened out during the morning, and a long list was anything to a point down, while the Steels, Aircrafts and Chemicals showed losses ranging to 2 points. Trading was at a slow pace, but mild recoveries in the second hour were feeble and temporary. Selling slackened appreciably at mid-day, but efforts at a rally continued feeble.

The market turned narrow and indecisive in the final dealings, and the close was heavy.

Sterling exchange opened ¼c. lower at $4.03½, and finally declined to close ¾c. down at $4.03. Silver was unchanged at 34¾c.

AN tOIREACHTAS MUSICAL COMPETITIONS

ADJUDICATOR'S AWARDS

Nine competitions for the arrangement and original composition of Irish music in connection with the forthcoming Oireachtas festival have been adjudicated and the following awards made:—

Arrangement of two songs, with piano accompaniment (tenor and bass voices) (five entries)—1, Proinnsias O Ceallaigh, 47 Fontenoy street, Dublin; 2, Seathrun M. Pamar, The Cottage, Sligh na Mara, Dun Laoghaire.

The adjudicators reported that the standard showed an advance upon that of 1939, and in fitting the poetry to music a good standard was reached by the majority of the candidates.

Arrangement of two songs, with piano accompaniment (soprano and contralto voices) (two entries)—1, Seathrun M. Pamar; 2, E. de Regge, Ashline, Ennis, Co. Clare.

Two original airs, with piano accompaniment (five entries)—1, no award; 2, Seosamh de Croifte, 8 Plas Risteamain, Ascal Cnoc Aoibhinn, Rathmines, Dublin.

In this competition, said the adjudicators, there were many echoes from traditional sources. Generally, technique was faulty and few seemed to have a proper idea of the emotional or atmospheric values of the poetry they chose to set.

Suite of four Irish songs arranged for mixed voices (two entries)—No award.

Suite of four Irish songs arranged for children's choirs (three entries)—1, E. de Regge; 2, Padraig MacAodhagain, B.A., B.Mus., Bunlin, Ballinacurra, Limerick.

The winning entries were of a high standard and the adjudicators had difficulty in distinguishing between them.

Suite in form of small sonata for piano (one entry)—1, E. de Regge.

The adjudicator said that the entry showed musical talent. The "Gaelic style" was too little in evidence, but it was carefully written and would be effective in performance for the most part.

Suite of Irish airs for string orchestra (one entry)—No award

Original composition for full orchestra (one entry)—1, no award; 2, Seathrun Pamar.

Three separate movements for violin and piano (three entries)—1, E de Regge; 2, Bean Ui Bolguidhir, Millmount, Gorey, Co. Wexford.

The winning entry was pleasant and effective, said the adjudicator. The second prize-winner's entry also should be effective in performance.

The adjudicators were.—Sir Hamilton Harty, Dr. Vincent O'Brien, Eamonn O Gallchobhair, Donnchadh Ua Braoin and Professor Aloys Fleischmann.

CHURCH OF IRELAND

GREAT BRITAIN'S LARGER STOCKS OF GOODS

The volume of business in most sections of the Manchester Provision market continues well up to the average, and deliveries of most commodities are being made on a regular basis. Great Britain's stores and shops in July were carrying greater stocks of many goods than they were in July, 1939. The latest official trade returns show that the value of total stocks at cost at the end of July were just 45 per cent. more than that of twelve months earlier. The higher valuations account for much of the rise, but the volume of goods on the shelves has expanded considerably. The increase in the value of stocks of food and perishables, which was nearly 60 per cent. at the end of June, rose slightly.

With issued supplies of butter on the four-oz. basis, there is a steady demand, and last week's allocation has been well cleared.

In bacon, distributors report a good consumptive demand, and allotments are quite sufficient to cater for all ration needs, especially as there has been a fair quantity of Canadian available, and also some Irish. Hams are still in very short supply, and there has been a reduction in the allowed quantity of gammons. Forends are also limited.

Eirean eggs are still in short supply, and there is also a shortage of home produced. A consignment of Canadian is now being marketed.

Only moderate supplies of fat cattle were received at Mode Wheel, the collecting centre under the Government scheme, but the quality was quite up to the average standard. Owing to the heavy pitchings of home-killed there was samller allocations of imported

BRITISH CASUALTIES

THIRTY-TWO MISSING IN SUBMARINE

Five officers and 27 ratings from the submarine, Spearfish, are reported missing in a British Admiralty communiqué issued yesterday. H.M.S. Spearfish earlier this year torpedoed the Admiral Scheer, Germany's latest pocket battleship. Her Captain, Lieutenant-Commander J. H. Forbes, one of the officers missing, was awarded the D.S.O.

901 ARMY NAMES

The British War Office List No. 38, issued yesterday, contains the names of 25 officers and 441 other ranks. Ten officers have been killed, eleven wounded and four are prisoners.

Among the other ranks nine are prisoners and 26 previously reported missing have also been captured. The number killed is 97, and 288 have been wounded.

The War Office Casualty List No. 39, issued to-day (Tuesday) contains the names of eight officers and 427 other ranks. Of the officers, three have been killed, one has died of wounds, three are wounded, and one is a prisoner.

Among the other ranks, six are prisoners, and of 34 previously reported missing, 28 are now stated to have been captured and six are now missing. The total of killed is 117, and 255 have been wounded.

332 R.A.F. NAMES

The British Air Ministry communiqué No. 45, issued to-day, contains the names of 332 officers and airmen. Among those previously reported missing, 27 are now prisoners, one is "safe," and 28 are now stated to have been killed in action.

Of the new names, eleven have been killed in action, 67 are missing, and 72 killed and 53 wounded or injured on active service.

The Royal New Zealand Air Force also figures in the list. One sergeant has been killed, and two others have died on active service.

ITALIAN CLAIMS

BOMBING BY DAY AND BY NIGHT

Yesterday's Italian High Command communiqué says:—"Italian bombers again attacked Haifa (Palestine) by day, and Alexandria (Egypt) by night.

"At Haifa, where our 'planes arrived unexpectedly, leaving no time for the defence to go into action, the oil refinery was squarely hit, and vast fires broke out.

"At Alexandria ships in the harbour and dockyard were bombed. The railway running from Mersa Matrush (Egypt) was also bombed. All the Italian 'planes returned.

"In East Africa Italian 'planes have bombed Boma, in the Sudan, and oil dumps at Port Sudan.

"Enemy 'planes have bombed Mogadiscu (Italian Somaliland), Massawa (Eritrea), and Berbera (British Somaliland), without causing victims, and producing only slight damage.

"One British 'plane which tried to attack the Italian aerodrome at Moggio, North-East Italy, was shot down in flames by Italian fighter 'planes. Three members of its crew perished, and one, an observer, with the rank of lieutenant, was taken prisoner."—(P.A. War Special.)

GENERAL WEYGAND'S NEW POST

According to the Multihavas Emission, the appointment of General Weygand as delegate to the North African Government, coming after Marshal Pétain's speech to the French of the Empire, is interpreted as a further sign of the capital importance attached to the unity and vitality of the French overseas possessions. It is learned that General Weygand is primarily entrusted with the work of co-ordination of defence measures. It is stated that this decision was taken in rigorous conformity with the Armistice clauses, which leaves the protection of the Empire to France. She has, therefore, the double duty of watching over the security and prosperity of her Colonial patrimony.

INDO-CHINESE NEGOTIATIONS

The conference between the Indo-Chinese local authorities and the Japanese representatives is taking place at Hanoi at the same time as the French and Japanese Governments continue their negotiations in a most cordial atmosphere. It is announced from Tokyo, and confirmed in Vichy, following the declaration of Mr. Cordell Hull, that the status quo of Indo-China was never questioned.

NEW FRENCH WAR MINISTER

General Huntziger, the new Minister for War, has left again for Wiesbaden, where his successor, who is to be appointed immediately, will join him at the beginning of next week. After presenting the new French representative to the German authorities, General Huntziger expects to return to Vichy in about a week's time to take over the duties of his new post. He will leave Wiesbaden with full knowledge of the high esteem in which he was held by the German Armistice Commission, who gave frequent proof of their appreciation of his qualities as a loyal negotiator and of his value as a military leader. In point of fact, the "second army" which he commanded was the heroic army which stemmed the powerful German onslaught from the 10th May to the 10th June without loss of territory until the general retreat obliged him to abandon his position.

At Ballynahinch Petty Sessions yesterday, before Mr. S. C. Clarke, R.M., Robert Maginnes, Harbour road, Kilkeel, was fined 20s., with 30s. costs for driving a motor lorry without due care. For a like offence in respect of a motor car Thomas Brannigan, Drumkeera, Ballynahinch, was fined 5s., with 15s. costs. A fine of £5, with 2s. costs, was imposed on William Reid, Castlenavin, Seaforde, for a breach of the Black Scab Regulations.

KING'S VISIT TO THE EAST END

SCENES OF RUIN AND TRAGEDY

THE King, who yesterday saw some of the havoc caused by German raiders, remarked at the end of his visit: "Everyone has been wonderfully brave." He had made a tour of the East End of London.

20 HOUSES WIPED OUT

In one narrow street the King stood upon the edge of a bomb crater that would have held three or four omnibuses and surveyed a scene of tragedy and ruin.

A line of houses stood backless, showing bed and sittingrooms, furniture smashed and scattered, and pictures hanging awry upon broken walls.

On Saturday night 20 houses stood at this place. Then a German airman struck, and now there is this hole in the ground.

"What type of bomb are they using now?" the King asked. He was told that the bombs seemed a good deal bigger than the earlier ones.

"It seems a marvellous thing that such an explosion as this should have killed so few people," said the King.

A crowd of East-Enders, many of them homeless, cheered the King as he left.

FLATS THAT MOVED

When he saw a block of flats, which it was said had moved a yard, but had not collapsed, the King remarked, "They have the steel girders to thank for that," I suppose.

One woman shouted when she saw the King, "Are we downhearted?" and there was a chorus of "No's."

The King met two old ladies, one of whom, Mrs. Turner, had lost five people in her house, among them a daughter-in-law.

"You are very brave," the King said to her.

LONDON'S SUFFERINGS

ROYAL MESSAGE TO L.C.C. CHAIRMAN

The Chairman of the London County Council (Mr. A. Emil Davies) on Sunday (September 8) received the following message from the King:—

"Sir John Anderson has been asked by the King to tell you of the distress with which Their Majesties have heard the news of yesterday's (September 7) air raids.

"The sufferings of the people of London and elsewhere are much in Their Majesties' thoughts, and Their Majesties hope to be able to visit to-morrow some of the areas in London which have suffered most heavily."

The Chairman of the London County Council has sent the following reply:—

"On behalf of the people of London I would ask you to convey to the King their appreciation of Their Majesties' gracious message of sympathy, and to assure Their Majesties that the people remain constant in their loyalty and fortitude."

"THE GONDOLIERS"

The famous Gilbert and Sullivan light opera, "The Gondoliers," is to be presented by the Father Mathew Players at the Father Mathew Hall in Dublin on Sunday next. Mr. Sam Mooney will be the producer, while Miss Julia Grey (guest conductor), and Mr. James Reid (musical director of the Father Mathew Players) are in charge of the choral and instrumental side of the production. The cast is strong and includes the Misses D. Riordan, K. Maher, A. McClean, K. O'Byrne, K. Vaughan, E. Doyle and K. Mooney, with Messrs. T. P. O'Brien, S. Black, J. P. Duffy, P. J. Henry, L. Murray, C. Fox and P. Dunne.

In addition to Sunday's presentation, further performances will be given on September 18th, 20th, 22nd, 25th and 27th.

CREAMERY BUTTER PRICE

The Minister for Agriculture has made an Order to-day fixing the statutory minimum price of 154s. per cwt. for creamery butter, in consignments of not less than 20 cwt., instead of 30 cwt. as hitherto. The statutory minimum price for consignments of less than 20 cwt. is 159s. per cwt. No change in the retail price of creamery butter is involved.

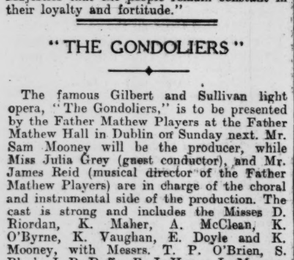
INDIGESTION

Relieved Instantly!



'Milk of Magnesia' sweetens a sour acid stomach, and relieves acute gastric pain in almost as little time as it takes to tell. For stomach troubles, indigestion, flatulence, heartburn, sick headache and acidity; for furred tongue, nausea and upset stomach caused by foods that disagree, there is no finer remedy the world over than 'Milk of Magnesia.'

The relief it gives is marvellous—instantaneous! And remember 'Milk of Magnesia' is absolutely harmless. It does its wonderful work by assisting nature. It neutralises the harmful acids and gently eliminates the fermenting poisons from the system. Doctors prescribe it extensively.

Next time you have indigestion take 'Milk of Magnesia' as directed. You will be delighted at the comfort it brings. Get either the liquid preparation or the remarkable new 'Milk of Magnesia' brand Tablets. They're delightful to take and you can carry them in your pocket or purse. Each tablet is equal to a teaspoonful of the liquid.

Obtainable everywhere

'Milk of Magnesia' 1/3 and 2/6 (Treble Size)
Also 'Milk of Magnesia' Tablets 6d., 1/-, 2/- and 3/6.

'MILK OF MAGNESIA'

'Milk of Magnesia' is the trade mark of Phillips' preparation of Magnesia.

FIRST WEEK OF SEPTEMBER

AIR ATTACK AND COUNTER-ATTACK

OPERATIONS AT SEA

By Our Military Correspondent.

THE German aerial offensive against Britain has latterly taken on a rather different form. Fewer 'planes have been used an the raiding, as a whole, has, nevertheless, been more continuous. London and the South-East have been the principal objectives of attack. The plan appears to be one of attrition—to break down morale cumulatively, to disturb communications, to reduce industrial output, etc. All this would be quite in keeping with—and may well be preliminaries to—subsequent mass-attack on even a larger scale than those of some weeks ago, or even that of Saturday last. The British defensive system continues to give a good account of itself, and is stated to be well able to stand up to much heavier assaults. Its counter-attack work also is being maintained very consistently. The later night raids over Germany and the occupied territories appear to be more far-flung, on a bigger scale, and technically better operated than formerly. For so far there is no sign of Germany securing anything like a mastery in the air.

The following figures have recently been given in some journals regarding first line planes of the belligerents: Germany, 10,000; Italy, 5,000; Britain, 8,000. Behind these would be as many in reserve, except in the case of Italy, whose machines are, in addition, in process of becoming obsolete. It would almost seem as if the transfer of Marshal Balbo from the Air Force marked the beginning of a decline that is only now becoming felt. So big an advance had he achieved.

ON THE SEAS

The naval side of the war has been more in the picture of late: it has been both more widespread and more vigorous. For one thing, the Germans have now a number of surface raiders at sea—three at least. These are probably of the converted merchantman type, which had already proved its worth in the former war by reason of their disguise facilitating evasion. The recapture by the British submarine Truant of the big Norwegian grain ship, Tropic Sea (5,781 tons), has revealed the presence of one—about which details will soon be available. It must have been a different raider which shelled the British Commander some 300 miles south of Madagascar—this one may be Narvik. Yet a third is that reported as operating in Australian waters. It may be expected that the number of these raiders will be added to, because we are approaching a season of the year when it is appreciably easier to slip them out into the high seas.

Submarine attack on merchant shipping and its escorting war vessels has also been considerable. It is clear that Germany has increased the number of her submarines on cruise, while Italian submarines have also been definitely located in the Atlantic. There is no difficulty in the way of their passing by Gibraltar submerged on account of the abyssal depth of the Strait—up to half a mile. The Italian constructors hold the record for deep-diving submarines. The British acquisition of the American destroyers will go a considerable distance towards countering the attacks by submarine. Of all escorting ships the destroyer is best for attacking an enemy once he submerges: they are speedy in reaching the spot and handy to manœuvre around.

THE BLOCKADE

The Germans claim a very successful attack on an East Coast convoy on the night of September 4th by a flotilla of Schnellboote. Whether or not the claim was exaggerated, the action clearly shows the intrinsic superiority of the surface-craft for an enterprise of the kind. Apparently, a number of merchantmen were sunk or damaged and one destroyer sunk belonging to the escort. It would be difficult to achieve equal results by means of either submarines or aircraft. The action seems also to indicate quite a respectable radius of action on the part of the Schnellboote. "East coast of England" means the Humber-Harwich region, in all probability—or well over 100 nautical miles out and as many back. This surmise gets further support from the statement that a base for Schnellboote is established at Lorient—on the coast of Brittany, some 70 miles South-East of Brest—i.e., on the open Atlantic.

The blockade of Germany and occupied territories generally will take on a rather different character this coming winter. Now there is no real dearth of certain important commodities that were seriously lacking then—or, rather, of which a shortage was threatening. For example, it can be assumed that the entire oil output of Rumania is earmarked for Axis military needs. Similarly, there is no longer any need of Swedish iron ore: there are the enormous metallurgical resources of Belgium, Luxembourg and France to draw upon. In the case of these raw materials it is to the Air Force that Britain must mainly look to prevent utilisation of them—by attack on the means of transport and distribution.

The most serious shortage this year is likely to be not raw materials but food. Production on the Continent has been bad this year, and any concentration into Germany and Italy from occupied territories only serves to put off the shortage one remove. The only big reserve of food-producing territory open to possible exploitation is French North Africa, and the British will certainly try to set up an export blockade of this region. Malta and Gibraltar are certainly not ideal as bases from whence to organise this; but they are where they are, and will doubtless be made the most of.

The British Mediterranean Fleet, indeed, has been showing greater activity. There has been mention of cruises off the Dodekanese and off French North Africa. British convoys have also been reported—almost certainly troop convoys for Egypt or Palestine. It must be remembered that only merchandise can leave out the Mediterranean: trooping convoys must continue to take their chance in the Middle Sea. It is essential from the British point of view to build up in the Near East the strongest force they possibly can while they still have time.

IMPORTANCE OF LIBYA

So far, Marshal Graziani in Libya has made no clear sign of offensive intentions. Sollum, Mersa Matruh and the railway back to Alexandria have indeed been bombed rather more heavily, but of a big-scale land offensive there has been no indication as yet. It may be that insurrectionary movements in the former French African possessions have made him uneasy of committing his entire strength to an offensive into Egypt. If things should go wrong behind him it would prove to be a two-front war after all. Possibly, too, there are other moves in contemplation. For instance, there is the Italian mission in Syria, while Italian forces in Albania are now placed as high as 170,000. A quite possible move might be one to try and recover Albania irredenta at the expense of Yugoslavia or Greece. It would be quite beyond the power of the British to prevent such a development.

There is the further question of what aid Germany can provide for a Mediterranean campaign—or, rather, at what point German aid can be applied to the best advantage. All things considered, Libya is possibly the likeliest. There is a through route, involving little sea journey; there is a clear-cut objective in the Suez Canal; no new adversary need be antagonised.

SHOT AT OFFICERS

TEN YEARS' PENAL SERVITUDE

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Monday.

Sentence was pronunciated to-day of the general courtmartial held in Northern Ireland recently, when Driver Peter Lester, of the Royal Army Service Corps, was charged with shooting at Company Sergeant-Major Barrie, of the same Corps, with intent to murder, and with wounding Corporal E. Sanson, of the same Corps, with intent to do him grievous bodily harm.

He was sentenced to ten years' penal servitude, three years of which have been remitted by the General Officer Commanding, Lester is a Lancashire man.

MOTOR NOTES

RISING PRICES

Where are the Used Motor Cycles?

By HAROLD C. BROWN

WHAT happens to the secondhand motor cycles in Eire? I consulted the statistics back to 1934 and found that the new machines registered each year numbered considerably more than 200, while the annual census showed a decrease in the number of machines on the road of approximately 400 per year. That is to say, about 600 motor cycles have gone out of use every year since 1934—a total of 3,600. Where are they?

I was asked if I could recommend a secondhand machine, and I searched for one that fitted the requirements supplied to me. "Secondhand machines," said one of the biggest firms in Eire, "are at a premium." Their prices, I was told, have soared.

Now, I can understand the prices of secondhand machines of good condition rising as a result of the war; but, surely, the steady growth in the number of used machines going off the road should have a counteracting effect and tend to force prices down, especially the prices of motor cycles that are four or five years old.

Pedestrian Control.

AN English official of the Safety First Association is reported to have said: "Some of us think that when the light is red and the traffic is busy the pedestrian should wait until the light changes, but you can hardly expect him to do so when there are scarcely any vehicles about."

Why, asks The Autocar, is it always taken for granted that a man, once he leaves the driving seat of a car, should become incapable of control? Why is it to be "hardly expected" that he should wait for perhaps thirty seconds before crossing a road? The whole essence of signal control is that one should be able to rely on the signals being obeyed at all times—not merely when it is convenient.

It is not as though the genus motorist was something entirely superior in responsibility and self-control to the pedestrian. Pedestrian and motorist are the same brand of citizen. In several million cases the classes overlap.

And to-day there is little excuse for maintaining that "the pedestrian" is beyond hope of control. He is subject to a dozen regulations far more onerous and easy to forget than that of obedience to traffic laws. Yet he obeys them remarkably efficiently. Now, when all possess identity cards, is just the time to formulate a few simple rules for all road users and get them obeyed.

World's Records

THE world's motor cycle speed record was beaten in this country once—on 6th November, 1930. The rider was J. S. Wright, and the machine was a 995 c.c. O.E.C.-Temple, with a J.A.P. engine. The designer, C. F. Temple, was an old record-holder, but at the time of Wright's attempt the holder was the German, Henne.

Wright used the Carrigrohane "straight," near Cork, a piece of road that subsequently was part of the Cork car race course. Wright himself came back to Cork as a mechanic, employed by the late Duke of Grafton for one of the car races.

The favourite place for British record attempts previously had been the road at Arpajon, in France. It was there that Temple had made the 1926 record at about 125 m.p.h. Henne did 134.68 m.p.h. in 1930, so Wright went to Arpajon and did 137.32 m.p.h. Henne responded with 137.66 m.p.h., and Wright then came to Cork and did 150.74 m.p.h.

Eric Fernihough, the next challenger to the German, beat the record in Hungary, where he was killed during a further attempt. Henne's records were made in various parts of Germany and Hungary. Taruffi, an Italian, was the last important figure in record-breaking. He did 170.42 m.p.h.

The only other world's record to be made in Ireland was the Baron de Forest's 94.09 m.p.h. in the Phœnix Park in 1903, his being the highest speed ever recorded with a car. His record, however, was not officially recognised.

European Trips

ONE cannot help thinking of the fellows that one knew who have been killed. Last Saturday night I took down Humfrey Symon's "Monte Carlo Rally," and, though Humfrey was killed at Dunkirk, I was able, with his book, to experience the thrills and pleasures of travelling with him in some of the least accessible countries in Europe.

Many of the places that have become familiar through the war figured in his travels — in Scandinvia, Poland and the Balkans especially. "Monte Carlo Rally" is two things at the same time—it is one of the best travel books and one of the best motoring books that I ever have read.

At a lonely house in Poland a figure like Shylock himself filled his tank through a rusty funnel in exchange for Anglo-American Oil Company coupons. Symons decided that henceforward he would, when in trouble, ask for the village Jew. "In the days that followed," he writes, "I often sought the aid of the 'despised' Semitics, their natural intelligence and kindliness and their knowledge of German frequently helping us out of our difficulties."

At a famous Polish restaurant, the Rzymsky at Radom, the orchestra played "Tipperary" in compliment to Symons and his co-driver. They imagined, like so many people on the Continent, that it was the English national anthem!

Vodka in Warsaw cost half-a-crown a bottle. In Dublin it costs two shillings for a "nip." In Warsaw, however, Gordon's gin cost four pounds a bottle. In Dublin the price is about 15s., in Belfast I have paid 25s., and in Gibraltar I have bought a dozen bottles at 1s. 8d. each.

If I am not mistaken, C. Penn Hughes, the race driver, who accompanied Symons on the trip through Germany, Czechoslovakia and Poland to Rumania on that trip, also has been killed in the war.

Schoolboys Say—

"HE heard a horn blow and was struck in the back. Evidently a lady was trying to pass."

"Wolsey invented motor cars and then discovered underwear."

"When we were out in the car on Sunday father misjudged a woman crossing the street."

"When you cross a street in a city you must have your fatalities about you."

The foregoing, it seems almost needless to say, are from a book of schoolboy howlers.

Novelty Event

ON Saturday next the Leinster Club will run a novelty event over a distance of approximately thirty miles, starting from Stephen's Green, South, Dublin, and finishing at the Grand Hotel, Malahide, where tea will be served.

Tests of an amusing nature will be included and no serious motoring will be involved. There will be first, second and third, and newcomers' prizes.

The entry fee of 3s. 6d. per person includes tea. Entries will be accepted at the start.

BRITISH TARS TAKE OVER DESTROYERS

Press Association War Special.

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, Monday.

The first actual transfer of United States destroyers to Great Britain took place here to-day.

British tars marched on board several of the American warships which have so far reached Canada, after American sailors had hauled down the Stars and Stripes. Union Jacks were hoisted in the bows, white ensigns in the sterns and the captain's pennants on the mainmasts, indications that the destroyers were now actually in commission with the Royal Navy.

ABBEY THEATRE

"THE RUGGED PATH"

Thousands of people appear to have discovered the Abbey during the past few weeks, and the success of George Shiels's latest play, "The Rugged Path," has meant the breaking of all Abbey records by the retention of the play for a sixth week. There seems to be little doubt that this is the best thing Mr. Shiels has written up to the present, and the producer and the cast have given him their best—the result is a splendid play, well acted and admirably produced.

One of the finest performances yet seen at the Abbey is F. J. McCormick's portrayal of "The Travelling Man"; it is a masterpiece of make-up and acting. Ria Mooney and Anatin Meldom also deserve commendation, while Eileen Crowe, in an unusual part for this actress, gives a most entertaining performance.

QUEEN'S THEATRE

FRANK O'DONOVAN'S SHOW

"The Show Goes On" appears to be an apt name for Frank O'Donovan's cheerful production at the Queen's Theatre. It is full of humour, music and dancing, with Kitty McMahon and Frank O'Donovan taking the leading parts in what is described as "almost a musical comedy." The local artists, including such old favourites as Dick Forbes, put on a really bright show, and the dancing of the "Moonbeams" is worth seeing. The production is attractively staged and the fact that it has now entered its sixth week is an indication of its success.

THEATRE ROYAL

"ROLL OF THE DRUM"

Several theatrical records have been broken in Dublin recently, and the success of the military presentation, "Roll of the Drum," has created yet another record, for it has been retained at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, for a third week. It is certainly one of the most interesting productions ever presented in the city, and, apart from being an excellent show, it provides the public with an opportunity of seeing something of Eire's Army. The staging, costumes and artists are all Irish, and the show possesses colour, comedy, music, dancing and pageantry.

ALL-NIGHT TRADE IN SWORDS

JUSTICE ASKS FOR AN UNDERTAKING

From Our Correspondent.

DROGHEDA, Monday.

At the Licensing Sessions at Swords District Court to-day, District Justice Reddin said that he would like to refer in general to the position of things in Swords which he did not think were commendable. It appeared that the trade in Swords now runs right through the night to the early hours of the morning. Complaints had been made by people living in Main street, and he would like to have some undertaking on behalf of the licensees that they would close their premises at, say, 2 a.m. A similar undertaking had been given and honourably kept by the trade in other places.

Superintendent Higgins said that the Justices remarks came as a surprise to him, as the Gardai had not heard anything about it.

Geard Cleary said that he had known licensed premises to be open to 3 a.m. and 4 a.m., but the persons on the premises were bona fide travellers. On two or three occasions where there was disorderly conduct the offenders were brought before the Court.

The Justice said that he would not renew the licences until October, and an undertaking could be given then. He would like the licensed trade in Swords to do what had been done elsewhere.

GAIETY THEATRE

MORE REVELS

Jimmy O'Dea's "Gaiety Revels of 1940" has started its last week at the Gaiety, and should not be missed by anybody who enjoys a good laugh. It has a freshness and a cheerfulness which are really enjoyable, and the cast, headed by the inimitable Jimmy O'Dea himself, puts up some thoroughly enjoyable entertainment. Comedy sketches, in which Tom Dunne and Noel Purcell help to make the pace, are a prominent feature of the programme, which also includes some attractive music, singing and dancing. Harry O'Donovan wrote the book of this production, and, as usual, he has put plenty of life into "the Revels."

OBITUARY

MR. M. N. LEDSHAM

Much regret has been occasioned by the death, which was announced yesterday, of Mr. M. N. Ledsham, manager of the Capel street (Dublin) branch of the Provincial Bank of Ireland. Aged sixty-four, Mr. Ledsham, who was a son of Major Ledsham, of the Royal Army Medical Corps, was a branch manager for twenty-two years, and, before coming to Dublin, was stationed in many towns in the country, including Nenagh, Limerick, Cork, Killorglin, Galway and Londonderry. At all these places he enjoyed the esteem and friendship of the many people who met him and who appreciated his courtesy, kindness and humanity. Mr. Ledsham was very interested in sport. In his younger days he was a keen footballer, cricketer and tennis player, but, perhaps, his favourite recreation was rowing. A native of Cork, he rowed for his city's club, and while he was in Derry he was an enthusiastic member of the well-known City of Derry Rowing Club. Mr. Ledsham was one of the most efficient and popular managers of the bank, and his loss will be felt very much in banking circles.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

GIRL ON BURGLARY CHARGE

(BEFORE MR. LITTLE.)

Mary Murphy (17½), St. Patrick's avenue, Dalkey, was remanded in custody for a week on a charge of house-breaking and larceny at the house of Mr. T. V. Shellard, Barnhill road, Dalkey. The girl was stated to have come to the police station and made a voluntary statement that she entered the house by a window and stole money, watches and silver articles.

DEPORTEES SENTENCED

John Patrick Doherty and Charles Sweeney, no fixed addresses, and John Ryan, North Great George's street, Dublin, were sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment with hard labour for stealing ten shillings' worth of waste paper from the Juverna Press. Detective-Officer T. Forde said that Ryan and Doherty were deported from England last March.

ARMED ROBBERY CHARGE

A formidable set of additional charges, concerned with the forgery of receipts and the fraudulent conversion of radio sets and vacuum cleaners to his own use, was preferred against Edward O'Rourke (41), manufacturers' agent, Vernon avenue, Clontarf, Dublin. O'Rourke already had been charged with obtaining money by falsely pretending that he could secure the release of a man from Mountjoy Prison; with having, while armed, robbed a Belfast visitor of £17 10s., and with having attempted to obtain £3 3s. from a Dublin gown shop manageress by pretending that he was a detective.

Evidence in regard to the sale of a cleaner having been given the accused man was remanded till Thursday.

A $20,000 (about £5,000) subscription from the Dionne quintuplets was one of the first for Canada's second War Loan.—(Associated Press.)

SPECIAL CRIMINAL COURT

INCRIMINATING DOCUMENTS

THREE MEN SENT TO PRISON

The Special Criminal Court sitting at Collins Barracks, Dublin, yesterday, sentenced Thomas Farrington, pawnbroker's assistant, Wexford street, Dublin, to twelve months' imprisonment for being a member of an unlawful organisation, and three months' imprisonment for having had incriminating documents on August 10 last.

They sentenced Patrick Moloney, a native of Tyrone, to twelve months' imprisonment for being a member of an unlawful organisation, three months' imprisonment for having had incriminating documents, and three months' imprisonment for having had a seditious document.

James Fitzsimons, Lannet, Inniskeen, County Monaghan, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment for being a member of an unlawful organisation; three months' imprisonment for having had incriminating documents; three months' imprisonment for failing to give his name and address to a Civic Guard officer, and three months' imprisonment for failing to give an account of his movements.

In each case the sentences are to run concurrently, from the date of arrest.

Mr. Oliver Moriarty, K.C. (instructed by Mr. J. A. Geary, Chief State Solicitor's Office), prosecuted on behalf of the Attorney-General.

Washington, Monday.—The United States Navy to-day announced that it has placed orders for 201 ships, costing $3,861,053,312 (about £965,263,328). The contract is the largest in the history of the country's Navy.—(Reuter.)

Zeppelin Raid on London.

Just after dusk last night three Zeppelins raided London, and the number of casualties—106 killed and injured—makes this raid on the capital the most serious since the beginning of the war. All were civilians, except four soldiers, of whom one was killed and three injured. Of the 20 persons killed, 12 were men, 2 women and 6 children. Forty-six men, 27 women and 13 children were injured.

Colonel Craig, M.P., has resigned the post of Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster-General of the Ulster Division, owing to an attack of phlebitis and arthritis. His illness is the result of overwork in connection with the division.

The Need for Munitions.

Mr. Lloyd George, addressing the Trade Union Congress at Bristol yesterday, said that but for trade union restrictions output of munitions could be increased in some places by 30 per cent. and in others by 200 per cent. He adduced a number of cases where output was being restricted, and this, he said, was not giving fair play to our brave forces at the front.

The Near East

In the middle of last week the Prime Minister of England announced that the effective strength of the British Fleet in the Mediterranean had been "almost doubled." Confirmation of his statement has appeared within the last day or two, when the information has arrived of substantial reinforcements for the Fleet at Alexandria. News is not exhaustive, but there is no Italian denial of the British affirmation that an "immense" convoy of ships, carrying men and war material from England, Rhodesia, India and Australia, has arrived in various Egyptian ports. One is at liberty to speculate on the apparent ease with which this substantial reinforcement has arrived in Levantine waters. Did all the ships come from England, or were they lucky enough to attain Egypt without casualty from starting points in different quarters of the world? In either event, it looks as if the British Navy had the Mediterranean and the Red Sea thoroughly well policed. The manner of their arrival, however, is less important than the destination of the soldiers who have arrived. Clearly they are intended to answer Marshal Graziani's threat to Egypt, and the question is whether they are sufficiently numerous and well-armed to answer it effectively. Little has been heard of the gallant Marshal during the last fortnight or so. It is known that he has concentrated a powerful force of Italians, reckoned at approximately a quarter of a million men, on the border between Italian Libya and Egypt, with the apparent intention to invade Egypt. His force has suffered loss, not only from the action of British bombing machines, which have harassed it continually, but from the shells of vessels of the Royal Navy, which pounded it to an uncomfortable degree some weeks ago. Losses, without doubt, were inflicted, but they cannot have been sufficiently heavy to dissuade the Marshal—who is a soldier of the first order—from his purpose. The Italian strategy against Egypt is obscure. The odds are that her armies propose to advance against Egypt along two fronts. One—probably the main line of attack—will be the coast road from Bardia, in Libya, towards Alexandria, and thence to Cairo; the second will be from the Abyssinian boundary towards Khartoum, in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. Of the force destined for this latter attempt nothing is known—or, at least, nothing beyond inference has escaped into the newspapers. No secret has been made of the existence, or of the intention, of the troops which are stationed at Bardia, waiting until cooler weather authorises their advance.

Great Britain certainly will not relinquish Egypt without a struggle, and Italy, with equal certainty, will not abandon the effort to gain control of Egypt. It is possible for the British to dispense with their hold upon the Suez Canal—for which the control of Egypt is essential—but to the Italians the control of the Canal would bring new life. Without it their contact with their forces in Abyssinia, Eritrea and the Somalilands is precarious in the extreme; but, if once the British could be driven from the Canal, Italy's chances of success against the British in Africa would be ten times as great as they are to-day. According to the logic of statistics, the Italians ought to receive an ardent welcome in Egypt, where their compatriots substantially outnumber the British, both in population and in influence; but the fact is that the Egyptians do not want them. Five years ago the people of Egypt broke the last legislative link that bound them to Great Britain, when a treaty was concluded between Nahas Pasha, a violently Nationalist Premier, and the British Government. Its effect was to pledge the two countries to alliance in the event of an attack by any third party upon either of them, to grant the British certain rights of military occupation in Egypt until a time when the Egyptians should be in a position to defend themselves, and to allow the British certain rights in the Canal zone and at other strategic points. These concessions are, without a doubt, limitations of sovereignty; but the people of Egypt conferred them on the ground that otherwise they would be defenceless against their enemies. Signor Mussolini never has made any secret of his aspirations towards sovereignty over the Canal Zone, in particular, and over Egypt, in general. The Egyptians know that the alternative to British "influence" is Italian "influence," and they have no desire to become a colony of any European Power. They are prepared to fight for their freedom. Barely a fortnight ago their Government announced that Egyptian soldiers would stand side by side with the British in opposition to any invasion by another Power; and anybody who has studied the fellaheen is aware that they will make fine soldiers. Yet Egypt is a small country, and, however strong the recent reinforcements from Great Britain and other parts of the British Empire may have been, it is improbable that they will be a match for Marshal Graziani's quarter-million men. Nature and the British Navy will be a useful ally to the defenders when the necessity for defence arises. Will they be enough?

War Songs

A song is a recognised cure for the "blues." As far back as history relates, men have been singing to keep their hearts up, singing to drive their cares away; and the musicians, who have been devising those cheerful ditties through the ages, have made more lasting places for themselves in human memory than a great many of the more spectacular figures. War, naturally enough, is a fertile time for music; for it is in time of war that men's spirits swell to their highest point or reach their lowest ebb. The present conflict, like every other, has brought forth its crop of songs; but so far they have been but poor empty things beside the heart-rousing ballads of twenty-five years ago. People do not seem to feel so deeply now as they felt then. Yet the cause for which Britain is fighting to-day is claimed to be a far, far greater cause than that for which she took up arms against Germany in 1914. The four years of the last war produced songs by the hundred, and quite a few of them—things like "Tipperary," "Keep the Home Fires Burning," and "Carry Me Back to Dear Old Blighty"—will live for many a long year still to come. They may become immortal; for they contain the spirit of an age. They were the kind of songs in which the heart-ache of the time, though it breaks through so often, was beaten back by an almost militant cheerfulness. One and all, they were marching songs; and they warmed and comforted a man when he was cold and well-nigh comfortless. They set his feet moving when there seemed to be lead soles on his shoes. Nothing that this war has produced—with the possible exception of "Roll Out the Barrel," which, indeed, is not very inspired—could be called anything like a worthy successor to the last war ballads. Most of them, of course, are not war songs at all; for while it may be possible to perform a fox-trot to them, it would be quite impossible to do a military march. Of course, there is not a great deal of military marching to be done. The aeroplane and the tank regiment—for the time being, at any rate—have put an end to all that; and while it is comparatively easy to write some kind of song suitable for men on the march, it must be a very different proposition to compose anything that would "go with" the flame-throwing tank and the dive-bomber! War songs reflect the mood of the moment—there was that 1919 ballad, for instance, in which, though the war was over, there was still the ring of the marching song, but a very different spirit:

We won the war. What was it for?
You must ask Lloyd George or Bonar Law.
We beat the German and the Turk—
That's why we're here now in gaol and out of work.
We won the war. What was it for?

This war is not like the last; and nothing gives a greater indication of the difference between the two than the latest song in England. It is called the Salvage Song, and it says:

Oh! We ain't gonna waste no more, no more,
We ain't gonna waste no more.
The less we waste the more we save
To win this ruddy war.

This certainly is in the spirit of the times, but what a pity it is that even for their war ballads nowadays our neighbours across the Channel have to borrow from America. Last time, however, the position was very much the same; for during the last war they borrowed their best marching songs from Ireland.

The Lap of Morpheus

Where bombardment from the air is restricted to military objectives, one of the greatest trials suffered by the residents in cities that are regularly visited by night bombers is lack of sleep. Endurance is sorely tried when half to three-quarters of the night have to be spent in an air raid shelter. It may be part of the war of nerves to attempt to prevent the opposition's population from having its normal allowance of sleep, night after night, so that eventually its powers of resistance will crack, and a spirit of defeat replace the will to win. An enormous force of aircraft would be needed to keep a whole country continuously awake throughout the night, but if the moral of the leading cities could be broken the national rot would have a considerable nucleus. It has been established, however, that healthy men and women can exist on very little sleep. Soldiers seem to thrive on late nights and early rising. The great military rivals of a century ago, Napoleon Bonaparte and the Duke of Wellington, preferred to sleep on camp beds so that there should be no temptation to lie long. Indeed, Wellington used to say, "When it is time to turn over it is time to turn out." The Emperor Charlemagne is reputed to have had enough sleep to rise at midnight. These, perhaps, are classic, and, therefore, isolated, examples; but in recent years medical men have spoken and written about the tendency of people nowadays to sleep too much. "Eight hours work, eight hours play and eight hours sleep" was a political slogan. The poets were not agreed upon the number of hours that should be spent in slumber; some said six and some seven. In actual practice, it has been found that individuals can reduce their allowance of sleep by two or three hours and yet suffer no inconvenience once they have become used to the shorter period. During the last war men in the trenches carried on their duties for weeks with but snatches of rest at irregular intervals. To the layman, it seems remarkable that neither physiologists nor psychologists have been able to offer any explanation of the cause or nature of normal sleep, and nobody apparently is qualified to dogmatise about the amount that really is essential. For all living creatures, except those with a less highly developed central nervous system than man, however, it is a necessity, and for man it is a blessing as well. "It covers a man all over, thoughts and all, like a cloak; it is meat for the hungry, drink for the thirsty, heat for the cold and cold for the hot." Cervantes, in "Don Quixote," may have claimed a lot for sleep, but the majority of those who have been spending their nights in air raid shelters probably would endorse everything that ever was written in praise of it. It is tired Nature's sweet restorer, and, fortunately for those who have to take it that way, concentrated doses can be as efficacious as lengthy draughts. The war of nerves, instead of producing nations of trembling wrecks, may cause the development of races of men who can work for remarkable periods without rest in the rebuilding of their shattered cities.

BRONZE AGE VILLAGE

FINDS AT LOUGH GUR

Excavations at Lough Gur, Co. Limerick, are again in progress and are yielding very interesting and important results. During this, the fifth season of the Lough Gur excavations, three sites are being excavated on Knockadoon, the peninsula in the lake—a stone circle and two dwelling sites. The circle has produced several burials, some with necklaces of bone and stone beads. The dwelling sites give confirmation of the findings of 1939 that a village of the stone and bronze ages existed on Knockadoon. The excavations are financed as a special employment scheme under the Commissioners of Public Works, and about forty workmen are employed. The work is directed by Professor Sean P. O Riordain, of University College, Cork, who is assisted by a staff of experts, including students and graduates of Cork and other Universities.

Among recent visitors to the excavations was the Count de Salis, who has generously helped the work by placing his castle and cottage at Lough Gur at the service of the excavators.

WHAT IS COLOUR?

DUBLIN ROTARY CLUB TALK

Mr. F. R. Unwin, M.I.E.E., spoke on "Colour" at the Dublin Rotary Club yesterday. He said that colour was not the property of a material nor of the light, but represented a sensation produced on the eye by those rays which were reflected from any object. In other words, colour was nothing at all.

Man had always been greatly influenced by colour. The ancient Druids used three symbolic colours—blue for truth, green for hope, and white for light. Other ancient orders used blue to symbolise universal friendship and red to indicate fervency. Illuminating engineers and decorators had to study colour in order to avoid, for instance, over-stimulus by using too much red or a feeling of coldness by using too much blue. Some shades of orange and yellow were chiefly used in these islands for interior decoration, and green was helpful to decorate places which would ordinarily be hot and stuffy.

A vote of thanks to the lecturer was passed on the motion of Mr. A. G. Bruton.

Mr. A. N. Pearson, president, who presided, said that he would convey the Club's sympathy to their hon. secretary, Mr. F. M. Summerfield, who is ill.

LONDON LETTER.

TRAVEL AFTER THE AIR RAID

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON.
MONDAY NIGHT.

London passed through a terrible experience last night, but the spirit of the people rose superior to the falling of bombs, fatalities, destruction of property, and the general confusion. Early this morning, when the bombardment was over, the people came out from the shelters cheering and joking, while they sought their homes. They had in many cases to find their way amid broken glass and débris, and in places had to produce their identity cards before they were allowed to pass through some areas. There was no sign of depression or gloom, even old people maintaining their cheerfulness. Hospitals were struck, but it is understood that casualties were comparatively few, most of the patients having been removed to safe shelter in time. Two world-famous museums were damaged during the night, and there was great disconnection of railway communications.

Travel Difficulties

Following a sleepless night, the average Londoner, determined to go to work as usual, made a bee-line for his regular station and train at the usual time. On arrival his difficulties began, however, and a very great number of passengers had to find new ways and methods of covering the journey to the city owing to interruptions on the lines. I left home at nine o'clock and managed to reach my destination by half past eleven after an interesting journey, consisting first of a ride in an omnibus, a short passage in a train, with eighteen passengers in one compartment, then another omnibus ride, more train riding, and finally a tram journey. This was due to the minor breaks here and there, which were being dealt with expeditiously and effectively. Everywhere the utmost good humour prevailed, and on the vehicles people who had been able to get newspapers, which were not available until hours after the usual publication time, were sharing with those who had been unable to do so.

The Price of Beer

Sir John Reith has been making a study of the price of beer, and, as a result, the soldiers travelling on main railways are to get more favourable treatment. Until lately a soldier buying beer on a train had to pay one shilling and threepence for a bottle containing 13/20 of a pint. The shilling was for the beer, and the threepence for the service charge. The railway company, the L.M.S., have now decided to substitute an imperial half-pint size at tenpence, plus twopence service charge. In making the announcement, Sir John Reith says that the price of a half-pint bottle ranges from sevenpence to elevenpence, "according to the quality of the beer and the place in which it is served."

Home Guard Uniforms

The question of issuing the Home Guard in Britain with regulation army battle dress has been under consideration, but for the present the lighter-weight garments will remain. Although outwardly resembling the regulation battle dress, the Home Guard uniform is of a lighter material, being made of denim, much of which is manufactured in Northern Ireland. For the winter the Home Guard are to be provided with great coats of the full regulation army weight, so that the lack of warmth of the battle dress is not likely to be so much felt. As the Home Guard is composed of men engaged on civilian work, the uniform is intended to be worn over civilian clothing, and for that purpose the battle dress overalls have answered the purpose well.

Educating Prisoners

The British Royal Society of Arts is hoping that it may be able to arrange educational examinations for British prisoners of war, and, if the War Office will grant permission, these will be carried out through the international Red Cross. Men interned at Uhrleben during the last war will remember the examinations held then, and similar examinations were held at Gronigen in Holland, and at other camps. Examinations in basic English are also being considered for any foreign soldiers who may desire them. The society has one of the biggest examination bodies in Britain, and in recent years over one hundred thousand students have sat for tests in a very wide range of subjects, mostly commercial.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

The Review at Howth

It was interesting to hear the views of a completely objective observer of the review of Local Security Force members which took place before Mr. de Valera at Howth on Sunday. The commentator, a former officer of a British brigade that had a reputation for smartness rivalling that of the Guards, was full of praise.

Bearing in mind that the troops had been engaged in strenuous exercises all day, that they had left their homes nine hours before, and had not had a real meal since breakfast, their marching and dressing were excellent, he said. There was a touch of smartness that indicated the presence of many "old soldiers" in several of the groups, but the older the marchers the greater seemed the desire to create a good impression before Mr. de Valera.

Not a "Wash-Out"

The only faults were those of officers, some of whom omitted to salute or to order the "eyes right" of their men. That fact he mentioned, not in criticism, but to give a true picture of the proceedings as a whole.

Of course, he said, the high light of the march past was the St. John Ambulance Brigade section. Even the St. John nurses kept their dressing and stepped out like well-disciplined soldiers.

Some of the people who went to Howth expecting to witness the sort of battle that Hollywood provides for their entertainment came back to Dublin complaining that the whole thing was a "wash-out." It was nothing of the sort. The officers and men of the L.S.F. had plenty of practice in scouting, signalling, the preservation of communications, in operating over difficult country, and, where actions took place, in fighting.

There were outposts where the men never saw the "enemy." That is inevitable in the type of war which was being simulated at Howth.

Lessons

Our special representative, a man of some military experience, by frequent use of cars, trams and, more especially, his legs, was one of the few who saw plenty of the manœuvres, from the point of view of both attackers and defenders, and he was greatly impressed by the enterprise of several of the units he encountered.

No doubt, some of the mimic engagements took a course far different from what would have been the case in real war. Red Cross men carrying stretchers with wounded across "no man's land," with rival forces blazing at each other on either side, was an example of the sort of thing that would not have been done if real bullets had been in use.

Some sections have a lot to learn, but equally important is the fact that some seem to possess excellent officers and to have a natural bent for soldiering.

Co-operation

"Your reference in to-day's issue regarding the A.R.P. shelter in the middle of Cook street," writes a correspondent, "might be followed up with further evidence of the lack of co-operation between the various departments of the Dublin Corporation.

"Take a look at Pearse square (the old Queen's square) in Pearse street. One department of the Corporation was busy constructing a children's playground there; the surface was concreted, and special areas left for the playground equipment.

"The A.R.P. have just erected four shelters—apparently without consulting the department concerned with the playground construction, or they would not have erected them on the special areas left for the equipment. They could just as easily have been placed clear of the playground area.

"The children suffer; the ratepayers suffer. Who cares?"

Carol

The ex-King Carol of Rumania has many international affiliations through his relations. His father, before reaching the throne, was Prince Ferdinand of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen, and his mother was Princess Marie of Edinburgh, a niece of King George V., the Kaiser and the Dowager Empress of Russia.

Carol's wife is the former Princess Helen of Greece. Four years after his marriage, which took place in 1921, he renounced his rights to the throne in favour of his infant son Michael, now King of Rumania. Ferdinand died in 1927, and in 1928 Carol repented of his renunciation, demanded his right to return, but aroused no enthusiasm for his cause in Rumania. He was, however, ordered to leave England.

In 1930 the Rumanians took him back. He took an active part in his country's politics and was not tolerant of democratic principles. He was Rumania's second King Carol.

A Four-Page Daily

I have just received a copy of France, the new daily paper which is being produced by French journalists in London for their compatriots—civil and military—now living in Great Britain.

Although it consists of only four pages—each about half the size of a page of the Irish Times—room is found for a not-too-brief résumé of the previous day's news, a summary of French Press comments, a leader, a feature article (in this case dealing with the reformation by Colonel Charles Sweeny, of the famous Lafayette Squadron), at least one good-sized picture on each page, a cartoon, a crossword puzzle, a serial, letters from readers, and a late news column. Strangely enough, my copy contains no advertisements.

The paper, which costs one penny, is printed entirely in French, but it is written in such an easy style that even those of us who have hardly touched that language since we left school should have little difficulty in understanding most of it.

Underneath its title France has the motto: "Liberté, Egalité, Fraternité."

TWO MORE RAIDS ON LONDON

GERMAN THREAT OF CONTINUED ACTION

LONDON had another sleepless night. German airmen opened a heavy attack on the city at dusk and dropped bombs on various areas.

An earlier attack with considerable forces lasted only a short time. The raiders were heavily engaged, and only minor damage is said to have been done to property. The casualties are not believed to have been heavy.

It is now officially stated in Berlin that the air operations against Britain are being personally conducted by Reichmarshal Goering, and it is threatened that the operations will not be confined to one or two large-scale engagements.

Here is what the Official German News Agency said on this subject last night:—

"Expert military circles in the German capital lay particular stress on the fact that Goering is personally conducting the operations of the German air battalions against Britain. From this it may be deduced that the German campaign of reprisals for the continued British night raids and bombing attacks on civilians can be taken in earnest.

"With Goering personally supervising, there is a determination that the operations against important military targets in London and Britain shall not be confined to one or two large-scale engagements. The personality of the Reichmarshal is also a guarantee that the action of the Luftwaffe will be powerful and continuous.

"The air over London belongs to the Germans any time they wish, and whenever the German War Command should deem it necessary."

According to British reports, up to ten o'clock last night 47 German aircraft had been shot down yesterday. Thirteen British fighters were lost, but the pilots of three are safe.

THE EARLY RAID

Large formations of German bombers, which flew in over the south-east coast of England, attacked London yesterday evening. A warning was sounded at 5.10 p.m., and it was 6.27 when the "all clear" was given. Many 'planes flying at a great height were heard in the Central London area, away in the direction of the Thames Estuary, shortly after the alarm.

Thirty bombers, escorted by waves of fighters, which crossed the south-east coast shortly after five, were met by a fierce A.A. barrage. One bomber staggered out as if hit and flew back to sea, rapidly losing height.

OVER WESTMINSTER

Crowds of Londoners watched an air battle which seemed to be over the Houses of Parliament. One big bomber, which appeared to be hit by A.A. fire, spiralled to the ground, and a parachutist was seen descending. Some of the raiders appeared to be making use of the large clouds passing across the sky at a fair pace. The noise of bombs could be heard in Central London.

When a store in South-West London received a direct hit, A.R.P. workers began searching the débris for casualties. A nearby shopkeeper told a Press Association reporter: "A formation of raiders passed high overhead. I heard the bomb whistling down. The concussion was terrific; the whole place rocked. Wreckage was everywhere."

While rescue squads were at work part of the building crashed into the street. Débris from a shop was thrown about, but this was quickly cleared. The road was roped off and traffic diverted.

SEVERAL SHOT DOWN

About 100 German bombers approached a south-western area of London. British fighters gave battle, and two German 'planes soon broke away, followed eastwards by the fighters. Both crashed, one in flames. Another German 'plane engaged in a "dog-fight" also crashed.

In a dog-fight over the south-east area eight German 'planes were brought down. No damage was done.

About 45 'planes were fighting.

The air fighting raged over a large area, and a fierce engagement between a formation of 30 raiders and British fighters was seen from many points.

An onlooker said: "The raiders flew through bursting A.A. shells. Several flights of our fighters darted in and through the formation, splitting them in two. One bomber fell away, with smoke pouring from its tail."

Another group of 15 German 'planes flying over South London were greeted with heavy A.A. fire, which ceased when British fighters went up to intercept them. Two Germans were shot down.

Three 'planes are believed to have been brought down in a "dog-fight" over a South-West London suburb.

"GRAND STAND" VIEW

People rushing homewards in a West London district saw one German 'plane crash in flames. It came out of a bank of cloud almost directly over the river. A British fighter directed a burst of bullets at it from close range. The German let fall its load of bombs as it raced across the sky, leaving behind a trail of smoke, which turned to flames as it fell in the distance.

People had "grand stand" views of "dog-fights" in the sky, and there was cheering when a raider was seen to fall in smoke.

In a south-eastern town on the outskirts of London about 50 aeroplanes flying high approached from the south, and a minute later came the rending sound of incendiary bombs faling in all directions.

As Mr. A. Robson was rushing towards his home, a few hundred yards away, he had to dodge a blazing incendiary bomb on his own doorstep. Wardens smothered it with sand. Numerous other incendiaries fell around his house.

WATCHMAN KILLED

Bombs which fell near a South-West London town blocked a road and killed a watchman. Time bombs fell behind a garage, and houses were set on fire by incendiaries.

Many high explosive and incendiary bombs fell in a South-West London suburb. Several fires were started, but were got in hand very efficiently by the local A.R.P. and A.F.S. services.

Spitfires in another area broke an enemy formation. Three machines crashed almost simultaneously with smoke pouring from their tails. Another came to pieces in mid-air, and a fifth hurtled to the ground beyond some trees.

ONLY MINOR DAMAGE

SCATTERED BOMBS IN LONDON

The British Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communiqué states:—

"This evening considerable forces of enemy aircraft again approached the London area. They were heavily engaged, and preliminary reports show that, while a few penetrated north of the river, only minor damage was done there.

"Scattered bombs were dropped in South London, many of them in the outskirts, but again no serious damage appears to have been done.

"While full reports are not yet available, casualties are not expected to have been heavy.

"Some of the enemy aircraft dropped bombs on a town in Kent and wrecked a number of houses. Several persons were killed.

"It is now known that during last night three enemy aircraft were shot down by our aircraft guns, making a total of eleven enemy aircraft in all destroyed yesterday.

"Fuller reports show that in Saturday's actions 28 enemy aircraft in all were destroyed by anti-aircraft fire, and 75 by our fighters, making a total of 103 destroyed on that day.

"Preliminary reports of this evening's raid show that 26 enemy aircraft have been destroyed—24 by our fighters and two by A.A. fire. Thirteen of our fighters are missing, but three of the pilots are safe.

"The Dover area was shelled this evening, and the enemy's gunfire was returned."

GERMAN REPORT

HARBOURS AND DOCKS AS TARGETS

A statement issued by the official German news agency about last night stated:—

"Harbours and docks north and south of the Thames were to-day the targets of German air attacks. German bomber formations plastered these highly-important military objectives with bombs of all calibres.

"Numerous fresh fires were started near the old ones, and lit up the banks of the Thames."

CANADIANS AND POLES IN ACTION

An all-Canadian squadron of the R.A.F. fought what was probably their greatest battle over the streets of London itself. They met the Germans as they were approaching the south side of the Thames and pursued them up-river from London Bridge to Hammersmith. In all, they destroyed three Dornier bombers, as well as three Me. 110 fighter bombers and four Me. 109's.

One of the two Polish squadrons with the R.A.F. were among fighters which took part in the last stage of the day's engagements. One of their sergeant-pilots who helped to drive the Germans back to the South coast came down in a cabbage field. He had shot down a Heinkel 111 and an Me. 109 single-handed.

When the Poles first sighted the Germans there were 40 of their bombers escaping southwards at great speed about 1,000 feet above them. One of their English section-leaders attacked a bomber, which escaped into cloud badly damaged, and then shot down an Me. 110, which he saw fall into the sea.

Another of the Poles sent an Me. 109 dropping into the clouds in flames. He caught another as it was banking in front of him, and fired straight into the cockpit. The last he saw of the Germans was a glimpse of this second Me. as it turned over on its back and fell downwards into cloud.

SECOND RAID OF THE DAY

The second air raid warning in London sounded at 8.39, and soon anti-aircraft fire was heard in the Central areas of the City.

Soon after 9 p.m. a solitary German bomber, flying at great speed, was seen to cross the Thames, and in a little time four explosions were heard.

Three hours after the second warning high explosive bombs were dropped in Central London.

Heard from a fifth floor room in Central London, a whistle like that of an express train preceded a dull "crump" as a bomb struck. 'Planes could be heard zooming overhead.

IN THE PROVINCES

German 'planes were reported over South-East and North-East England towns and the Midlands last night.

Anti-aircraft in the South-East area opened fire on a single German bomber which passed over a number of towns from the London direction. The 'plane, struck by a shell, was seen to stagger, but it flew on out of sight.

Later it was reported that a German bomber had crashed.

GERMANS BLAME CHURCHILL

"If there are civilian casualties and the destruction of homes in London, they are such as cannot be avoided," stated the German Radio last night in an English broadcast.

"The misery thus caused is not to be laid at Germany's door," the announcer continued, "but at that of the warmongers, with Winston Churchill at their head. These men are responsible, and not Germany."—(Press Association War Special.)

High explosive bombs were dropped by a German raider off the south-east coast of Scotland early this morning.

Several of the bombs fell on to a street and one near a farm, but caused no serious damage. Anti-aircraft guns were in action.

A few bombs were dropped in the scattered districts of the Midlands late last night.

OFFICIAL STORY OF THE RAIDS

350 GERMAN AIRCRAFT

The British Air Ministry News Service stated shortly after midnight:—

"After a morning of calm Germany launched another 350 aircraft at South-East England and the London area between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. last (Monday) evening.

"Successive waves of bombers and fighters crossed the coast between the North Foreland and Hastings. Wherever they turned they were engaged by R.A.F. fighters, new squadrons taking up the attack from point to point.

"As they crossed the Kentish coast our fighters were ready for them. They fought them over the rolling woods of Sussex, across the hop fields of Kent, above the commons and downs of Surrey, and over the streets and houses of London.

"They pursued them back across the English Channel on their return journey. A.-A. guns helped also to harass the enemy.

"The evening's objectives apparently included R.A.F. stations in South-East England and various industrial targets, as well as London. Many of the enemy, however, were driven back before reaching any objectives inside the London area.

"Reports up to 10 p.m. show that 47 of the enemy have so far been destroyed—45 by fighters and two by A.-A. gunners.

"A Hurricane squadron provided a good example of the way in which the enemy were continually attacked, even when they seemed just about to reach their objectives. They caught a formation of 30 Junker 88's as they were nearing their target, made a head-on attack, shot down five of them, broke up the whole formation, and completely threw out their attack.

"An English Spitfire squadron waded into a formation of Messerschmitt fighters. It destroyed 6 of them and probably also one of the Heinkels, which the Messerschmitts were escorting.

"The Royal Canadian Air Force Squadron, which is now fighting alongside the R.A.F., saw a number of enemy bombers flying at a great height. They climbed in their Hurricanes to attack them. On the way up they lost sight of the first lot of bombers, and found themselves in the middle of a number of Messerschmitt 109 fighters, which were heading south, with a group of enemy bombers below them. The squadron leader chased one of the Messerschmitts down to the coast, followed it two miles out to sea, and damaged it severely. Another Canadian pilot caught another Messerschmitt and shot it to pieces.

TEN HOURS' RAID

DAMAGE IN LONDON ON SUNDAY NIGHT

Although London was subjected to a more intense bombing on Sunday night than that of Saturday night, when hundreds of people lost their lives, damage and casualties, it is said, were not necessarily so high.

The raiders hovered over the city for almost ten hours, dropping high explosive and incendiary bombs and starting many new fires.

OVER CENTRAL LONDON

The raiders, which first approached from the south-east and afterwards varied their tactics by coming in from other points, started by scattering bombs on areas in East London. Some fires were started and the A.R.P. workers were once again quickly in action after the warning had been sounded at 7.59 p.m. They worked ceaselessly despite the bombers, which cruised round and round to see the result of their work before dropping further salvoes.

Soon the raiders crept nearer and nearer to Central London despite intense A.-A. fire, which was one of the heaviest since war began. Many who ignored advice to remain in shelters or under cover saw one of the most spectacular scenes that London raid history has ever known. Guns and bombs crashed like thunder. Salvoes from the guns were immediately followed by bombs.

NURSES' HOME STRUCK

A bomb fell outside a newspaper office, but, as the workers were all in shelters, nobody was hurt. A high explosive hit the nurses' home of an East London hospital. The staff and nurses were in the basement shelter and there were no casualties, though the home was extensively damaged. The hospital itself was undamaged. The staff on duty was busy with raid casualties at the time.

The high rear wall of a factory fell, covering a courtyard behind with tons of bricks and broken masonry. If the damage had occurred on a week-day the wall would have fallen on scores of horses which would have been tethered in the yard on the sound of an air raid alarm. As more bombs fell one warden was hurled through a shop doorway and another through a plate glass window, but the A.R.P. squads worked on, saving many of the people, although there were a number killed (estimated by one rescue worker at three or four).

Only the mere shell of outer walls remained of some four storey buildings near those shattered by bombs.

SEVEN KILLED IN SHELTER

Seven people, including a mother and father, their daughter and her child, are believed to have been killed when a high explosive bomb fell on a garden shelter in S.E. London.

Outside the building where the shelters was a battered 'bus with its top half torn off stood in the street after the raid. It had been left empty at the height of the raid.

The people in the underground shelter are believed to have been trapped through one corner falling in because of the terrific force of the explosion, which shattered walls in neighbouring buildings.

AERIAL TORPEDO FALLS

TWELVE DEAD IN AN INSTITUTION

GERMANY'S WEEK-END LOSSES

According to a London report last night, 103 German aircraft were destroyed in actions over Britain on Saturday last. Of these 28 were brought down by anti-aircraft fire and 75 by R.A.F. fighters.

R.A.F. OVER GERMANY, FRANCE AND BELGIUM

THE British Air Ministry, in a communiqué issued shortly before 5.30 yesterday, stated:—

"Yesterday, in the course of routine reconnaissances, Royal Air Force bombers attacked shipping in the ports of Dunkirk and Boulogne and convoys in the North Sea. Five of our aircraft are missing.

"Last night, in spite of severe weather conditions over the continental coastline, strong forces of our bombers carried out operations against enemy and enemy-occupied ports, large concentrations and shipping at Hamburg, Bremen, Emden, Ostend, Calais and Boulogne.

"Widespread damage was done to oil tanks and ammunition stores, and many fires were started. Eight of our aircraft did not return."

HEAVY BOMBS DROPPED ON HAMBURG

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL

SALVO after salvo of heavy bombs and hundreds of incendiaries were dropped by the Royal Air Force in a three-hour attack on Hamburg on Sunday night.

Giving details of the raid, the British Air Ministry News Service stated:—

"For over three hours—10 p.m. to 1.15 a.m. to-day—the British bombers arrived in relays over the docks and shipyards.

"Undeterred by a storm of anti-aircraft shells, the glare of searchlight concentrations, patches of thick cloud and much ground haze, the raiders cruised above the great dock area on the banks of the Elbe.

"Methodically pin-pointing their target, they released salvo after salvo of heavy bombs and hundreds of incendiaries. Repeatedly sticks of heavy bombs were seen to crash across the docks and port installations.

"Many sticks of high explosives straddled the Blohm and Voss yards.

MANY FIRES

"Fires broke out in many parts of the wide target area, and, although some died down again, others caught on and burned fiercely.

"The crew of one aircraft saw wharves and a railway station on the north bank of the Elbe, near Bakenhafen, burning, another fire near Hanshansahafen, and the glow of a third downstream near Altona.

"One of the early raiders, dropping a stick across the docks, saw two fires begin, about 500 yards apart, on the north bank, close to the mouth of the Elbe tunnel.

"Another pilot who arrived a little later said: 'From some miles west of Hamburg we saw the bombs landing in the dock area and a large fire. There were someone else's bombs bursting near it.'

"By 11 o'clock a low cloud had formed. A pilot arriving then said: 'We could see little owing to the clouds, haze, darkness and heavy A.-A. fire. But we did see that our bombs straddled the docks.'

"Bombs could be seen bursting among dockside buildings, while the fierce A.-A. barrage continued, and scores of brilliant searchlights swept the sky.

"More fires broke out, and they were burning fiercely as the bombers left. From far down the river homing raiders could see the glare in the sky. One saw it distinctly 60 miles away."

THREE CIRCUITS OF THE DOCKS

The captain of one of the aircraft which raided Hamburg described to the Air Ministry News Service how, before dropping his bombs, he made three circuits of the docks to make certain he was over his target.

"Just after releasing our bombs," he said, "we ran into a barrage of anti-aircraft fire, and got a direct hit on the port wing. One shell went right through the oil tank, and another shell hit our tail.

"We turned for home, fully expecting the port engine to fail at any moment for lack of oil, but, to our amazement, she ran perfectly all the way and did not even overheat.

"Near our base we ran into a terrific electric storm. The whole machine was alive with statics, and at one time it appeared to be a mass of blue flames. When the wireless operator tried to earth the trailing aerial he got a shock, which threw him across the cockpit.

LATE NEWS

FIFTY 'PLANES IN BATTLE

LONDON, Monday Night.

Between raids in the London area to-night queues formed outside a large shelter. Many people carrying small mattresses and pillows asked if they could spend the night there, raid or no raid. They were told by the wardens that the shelter could not be opened until a raid alarm was sounded, and that "first come first served" would be the order of admittance. There could be no space reservations.

In a deep shelter in the Central London area the crash and rumble of bombs could be heard.

Six hours after the raid started bombs were still falling in the London area.

In the evening raid about 25 German bombers, flying at about 10,000 feet, were attacked by British fighters over a south-east town. The raiders jettisoned bombs, some of which fell on houses, and one or two in roadways. A man was killed, and as family was buried in a cellar. Two German bombers were seen to dive out of control when the Spitfires attacked.

Civil defence workers in a South-West district of London watched an aerial battle over the town, in which at least fifty aircraft, British and German, were involved. Four raiders were shot down. The raiders had dropped two or three bombs. A doctor was attending a patient when a bomb fell on the house. He rendered first-aid, and also stopped to attend to other casualties.

One of the falling 'planes crashed into the wall of a farmhouse, whihc caught fire. The engine was thrown yards away.

OPPOSING CLAIMS

The German wireless reported that 40 British and 16 German 'planes had been shot down on Monday in the fighting over London.

DIRECT HITS ON TWO HOSPITALS

LONDON, Tuesday Morning.

High explosive bombs which dropped on a rural area in North-West England early to-day caused no casualties and little damage. Bombs were dropped in another North-West district early to-day.

There were direct hits on two hospitals in the Central London area.

A tramcar was overturned by the blast from a bomb in one London district, but there were no casualties.

One of the hospitals hit was for children and the other for maternity cases.

CHANNEL SHELLING RESUMED

Long-range guns on both sides of the Straits of Dover resumed shelling early to-day after a lapse of four hours since they ceased firing last night.

German batteries on the French side began the new artillery duel, opening up with a salvo of three shells, which rocked the Dover area. Vivid flashes from the exploding shells lit up the coastline.

Searchlights filled the sky trying to find a German reconnaissance 'plane, which was acting as "spotter" for the German artillery.

British long-range guns fired across the Channel in reply, and several salvoes were exchanged.

OSTEND CALAIS AND BOULOGNE

A BRITISH Air Ministry News Service statement last night says:—

"Enemy shipping gathered in French and Belgian Channel ports was again heavily bombed by the R.A.F. in all-night raids last (Sunday) night.

"That the Germans are intent on screening these concentrations from observation and attacks is shown by the very heavy anti-aircraft defences which have recently been set up along the coast.

"Last night the barrage was intense, and our aircraft had to find their way through a curtain of fire to reach their objectives.

"The raids on Ostend began before 9 o'clock last night, and went on until 4.30 this morning.

"One of the pilots described the weather as 'filthy,' and said that aircraft had to contend with rain, sleet, thunder and lightning. As the bombers released their salvoes, bursts were observed in and about the Leopold Basin, and a little later one of the observers saw a vivid sheet of flame.

"Strings of barges in the docks were located by another squadron, and after their bombs had burst in many parts of the target area fire broke out.

"Just before 11 o'clock the Nouveau Bassin de Chasse was hit, and over five hours later another attack on the same basin resulted in fire. One of the fires started in the Ostend docks was estimated to cover 10,000 square yards.

"After another aircraft had bombed some vessels tied up to a quay there was an explosion so violent that the aircraft, flying at 11,000 feet, was flung about.

BOULOGNE

"The first bombs fell in Boulogne Harbour soon after 6 o'clock last evening, when aircraft which had been making an inland reconnaissance flew over the harbour and successfully bombed shipping.

"Later in the evening a group of bombers which evaded a balloon barrage and were greeted with vari-coloured star shells arrived over the town. One of them dropped a flare and by its light the harbour was clearly seen before the attack was launched.

"The main outer harbour and some adjoining quays were hit by one of the aircraft, while another scored three hits along the side of the inner harbour.

"One pilot could not locate his target because of the wretched weather. He returned to the English coast, checked his position afresh, and set off again for France, this time successfully.

"Calais docks were also bombed as dawn broke this morning. There were several encounters with enemy fighters. A Messerschmitt 109 pursued out to sea a bomber which had already dropped its bombs. The British machine flew down to sea level and then, as the enemy closed in, the rear gunner fired two quick bursts. The Messerschmitt broke away."

R.A.F. TO FIND ANSWER TO NIGHT BOMBING

LONDON, Monday.

EXPERTS of the Royal Air Force are now working "very strenuously" to produce the counter to the Germans' night bombing. "The answer will assuredly be found," a high authority stated to-day, "and I think we shall find it before Germany does."

"Our policy," it was stated, "remains unchanged. It may be that the Germans are endeavouring to egg us on into reprisals, but we appreciate probably more than they do that the boxer who loses his temper in the first round is not likely to win the fight.

"The best policy is to form a plan which will hammer the enemy most, and to stick to it and not to be led away into a tit-for-tat campaign," the officer stated.

"The present policy of the enemy appears to be an endeavour to force us to use our fighter forces in increasing numbers. He is sending his masses of 'planes over with very heavy fighter escort, and hopes that his losses will not be so heavy as ours, and that we shall use up our fighter reserve.

"So far our losses have been insufficient to justify any optimism on his part. I have no hesitation in saying that we have the necessary reserves of pilots and machines to stand up to our present losses."

Speaking of Sunday night's raids on London, the officer said that a lot of the German bombing was done under difficult cloud conditions.

"A lot of the bombing was indiscriminate. "Undoubtedly," he said, "our pilots were reaching their objectives more successfully than the Germans. They relied largely on landmarks, whereas our men, far better trained at present than the Germans in night flying, reached their targets by accurate navigation.

"The black-out," added the officer, "is our best defence at present."

BRITISH SEAMEN'S FAMILIES

U.S. HOSPITALITY

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

REDBANK (NEW JERSEY), Monday.

Mr. James Cromwell, who resigned from his post as U.S. Minister to Canada four months ago to run for Democratic nomination as Senator for New Jersey, in his campaign address here urged the United States to offer "the hospitality and safety of our nation to the families of British naval officers and seamen for the duration."

He declared that this would give the naval crews a strong incentive not to surrender their vessels.

Mr. Cromwell, when U.S. Minister to Canada, caused a sensation by a speech in Toronto in which he frankly praised the Allied war aims and openly criticised Germany. Mr. Cromwell is married to Miss Doris Duke, known as "the richest girl in the world."

U.S. ARMY NOT EFFICIENT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Monday.

A remarkable allegation about the poor condition of the United States Army is made in the New York Times to-day.

Mr. Hanson Baldwin, a contributor, says the recent Army manœuvres disclosed that there is inadequate equipment, a high percentage of "green" officers, raw recruits in all units of the regular army and National Guard, and serious deficiencies in staff and command work even in the elementary fundamentals of soldiering.

GUN DUEL ACROSS ENGLISH CHANNEL

SHELLS LAND ON KENT AND FRENCH COASTS

PRESS ASSOCIATION STAFF REPORTER.

DOVER, Monday.

PART of the Kent coast (Dover) was shelled to-night by German guns mounted near Cap Gris-nez Lighthouse.

The German battery, mounted on the white cliffs immediately east of Cap Gris-nez Lighthouse, began the bombardment.

Orange tongues of flames spurted from the guns. These were in a line close to the lighthouse, which stood out white against the horizon in the brilliant evening sunshine. Four black spirals of smoke coiled into the air from the guns.

In a Dover sea front hotel I counted 75 seconds between the flashes and the crash of the explosives as the shells burst. Salvoes were fired at two-minute intervals; then there was a lull of twenty minutes, and then the German guns thundered again.

At sunset two more German guns came into action. They were mounted nearer to Calais than the first battery.

British guns took up the duel and shells were falling on the German-occupied French coast.

The artillery duel was still going on at 10.45 p.m. Flashes of the guns and bursting shells lit up the starlit sky on both sides of the Channel. The cliffs on the English side shook with the concussion.

The gunfire went on long after the R.A.F. raid on the German emplacements on the French cliffs between Cap Gris Nez and Calais.

"Flaming Onions" streamed into the sky while this raid was in progress, and bomb flashes caused a red glare.

Standing on a cliff-top overlooking the twenty-one miles strip of sea separating the rival guns, a Press Association reporter had a grand stand view of the battle. Shells whizzed through the air and clouds of black smoke rose as they exploded. By means of a stop-watch, the reporter timed the interval between the flash of the British guns and the thud of the shells falling on the French coast.

The explosions of the bursting shells were heard over the telephone in London as the Press Association reporter spoke from his hotel. The German bombardment ended at 10.45.

R.A.F. HAMMER THE GUNS

At dusk last night the Royal Air Force delivered hammer blows at the German gun emplacements. Brilliant red flashes of bursting bombs lit up the sky over the French coast.

German searchlights swept in the gathering darkness, and tracer bullets could be seen streaming upwards.

The concussion of the bombs falling on the gun positions shook the ground on the British side of the Channel.

It was one of the most violent raids ever delivered by the Royal Air Force on the German-held Channel ports.

While this raid was in progress searchlights on the English side of the Channel probed the sky for German 'planes, whose engines could be heard overhead.

THROUGH AMERICAN EYES

FRANCE AND BELGIUM OVER AGAIN

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

NEW YORK, Monday.

GRAPHIC accounts of Goering's "thunderous assault" on the heart of the British Empire, and the way London stood up to its "week-end in hell," were issued by the Associated Press to-day, in some 4,000 words of despatches from its correspondents in London.

London prayed for clear weather, Drew Middleton reported, to give their anti-aircraft and pursuit 'planes a fighting chance.

Despite repeated attacks at the docks in 19 hours of bombing much of the charging and loading berths were still intact, and other military objectives which received lesser blows were being swiftly repaired.

The Germans in some cases, he went on, aimed at communication centres and utility plants, but there was more damage done to working-class districts around them than to the objectives themselves. There was a vast amount of damage running into millions of pounds to civilian homes, hospitals, warehouses and streets and the lighting and gas systems.

Of the homeless and the pathetic sights in the devastated areas of the East End, he wrote that it was "France and Belgium over again."

Dwight L. Pitkin reported how "humble working-class folk, including many who have lost members of their families, thronged about the King's car" when His Majesty made a tour of the East End. And told how the King was impressed by the "wonderful spirit of the people under their suffering."

"LONDON KEEPS CHIN UP"

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

NEW YORK, Monday.

New York evening papers give great prominence to latest reports of London's air raids.

One front page caption reads: "London Keeps Chin Up: Uncowed Millions Walk to Work."

Some of the papers publish reports from London forecasting that "an attempt at invasion may be imminent."

GERMAN COMMENT

BERLIN, Monday.

Here are samples of to-day's German Press comment on the "reprisals" raids:—

Hamburger Fremdenblatt.—"As regards the continuation of the provocative British conduct of the war, it is indispensable that grave warning should be given in impressive form. This is doubly necessary as yesterday's raid on Hamburg proved that the grave effects of German reprisals had not been sufficient to bring those guilty of the war to their senses. In their incorrigible recklessness and their blindness they evidently play with the mad illusion that the British capital can remain unpunished."

Angriff.—"After having had to accept the impudent declaration of war, and after watching the enemy's senseless antics for months, Germany is now paying back two-fold. Retaliation will also be made for the bombing attacks on Hamburg.

Nachtausgabe.—"There is not the slightest doubt that the British airmen received the command to carry out acts of terror against the German civilian population."

Boersen Zeitung.—"The lamentation now suddenly audible in London suits those who called for the German retaliatory measures just as little as those who months ago assumed that Germany could be taken by storm, and that they would be able to hang out their washing on the Siegfried Line in the style of the pious Vicar of Leicester."

HUGE U.S. DEFENCE BILL SIGNED

200 War Vessels to be Built

EQUIPMENT FOR TWO MILLION MEN

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

HYDE PARK, NEW YORK, Monday.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT to-day signed the 5,251,486,392 dols. (£1,312,871,000) bill, carrying funds for a two-ocean Navy and for equipment for an Army of 2,000,000 men.

Mr. Stephen Early, the President's Secretary, announcing the signing of the bill, said that the Army would be ready to award contracts totalling $524,000,000 (£131,000,000) within a few days.

The Navy acted immediately after the signing of the bill. The Navy Department announced that officials were signing contracts calling for additional expenditure amounting to $51,653,500 (about £17,913,400) for the expansion of naval establishments.

2,400 AEROPLANES

Officials are also negotiating contracts for approximately 2,400 'planes.

The completion of these negotiations, it is stated, will bring the total amount of money involved in the current series of contracts to $4,000,760,812 (about £1,000,176,703).

According to Navy circles here, the 201 vessels to be built comprise 7 battleships, 8 aircraft carriers, 27 cruisers, 115 destroyers, 43 submarines and one repair ship.

All seven battleships provided for in the newly-signed contract are of 45,000 tons, it was announced in Congress to-night. This brings the total of these large battleships, which are now either being built or on order, to twelve.—(Reuter.)

PANAMA DEFENCE STRENGTHENED

'PLANES MOVED TO NEW BASE

WASHINGTON, Monday.

The War Department to-day announce that it has moved two groups of medium and long-range bombing and reconnaissance 'planes as a step towards the strengthening of the aerial defences of the Panama Canal.

They will be stationed permanently at the new Army base at Puerto Rico, whence they will be able to guard hundreds of miles of the Atlantic approaches to the canal.—(Reuter.)

LAIRDSCASTLE LOST AFTER COLLISION

DESTROYER'S DASH TO RESCUE PASSENGERS

A destroyer's pace through darkness to rescue 72 passengers and 24 crew of a sinking steamer off the west coast of Scotland was revealed yesterday.

The steamer was the Burns and Laird vessel Lairdscastle (1,945 tons), at one time used in the Dublin-Glasgow service, which sank within three hours after being in collision, in fog, with the 4,748 tons cargo steamer Vernon City, belonging to the Reardon Smith Line. No lives were lost.

The rescued have been landed at a Scottish port.

After an hour or two it was seen that the Lairdscastle, which had developed a list, would go down, and the order to abandon ship was given. The sea was calm, and although one lifeboat was crushed in the collision the others were lowered safely and everybody was taken on board. Some men passengers helped the women passengers into the boats. One woman passenger, Mrs. Allison, had an anxious time until she was reunited with her baby on the destroyer, which reached the spot two hours after the call for help.

The Lairdscastle remained afloat for three hours, and then plunged suddenly to the bottom. When a lifeboat arrived nothing but debris was seen on the water.

One passenger, who spent two hours in a lifeboat, said that the weather was foggy when he came on deck after hearing a great thud. In the darkness he could just see the outline of a bigger ship backing away.

SUBMARINES SINK ITALIAN SHIPS

An official British Admiralty communiqué states:—

"British submarines operating in the Mediterranean waters are adding considerably to the Italian High Command's difficulties in keeping its army in Lib a supplied.

"H.M. submarine Osiris (Lieutenant-Commander J. R. G. Harvey, R.N.) has sunk an Italian supply ship of about 3,000 tons.

"H.M. submarine Rorqual (Lieutenant-Commander R. H. Dewhurst, R.N.) has attacked a convoy of two supply ships escorted by one destroyer.

"H.M.S. Rorqual's torpedoes sank both the Italian supply ships.

BRITISH SUBMARINE OVERDUE

An official British Admiralty communiqué states:—

"The Secretary of the Admiralty regrets to announce that H.M. submarine Phœnix (Lieutenant-Commander G. H. Nowel) is considerably overdue and must be considered lost.

"The next-of-kin have been informed."

H.M.S. Phœnix, a submarine of the P class, was launched at Birkenhead in October, 1929. She has a displacement of 1,570 tons on the surface and 2,040 tons when submerged. At the launching the vessel was named by Mrs. Dunbar-Nasmith, wife of Rear-Admiral M. E. Dunbar-Nasmith, V.C.

The name of Phœnix is one of the oldest borne by British warships, dating back to about 1550.

TRAWLER STRIKES MINE

ONLY FOUR OF CREW SAVED

The Grimsby trawler, Salesoon, left for a fishing trip on Saturday morning with a crew of twelve, but within a few hours she was mined and sunk, only four of those on board surviving. They were the skipper, T. Salt; deckhand, Arthur Artis; deckhand, Walter Johnson, and trimmer Alfred Austwick. The Skipper and Artis are in hospital; the skipper with a broken thigh and Artis with facial injuries.

Johnson told a Press Association Reporter that three or four of the men who were in the fo'c'sle were thrown from their bunks by the explosion. "When we got on deck," he said, "the ship was going down rapidly. The water was up to the winch and the stern was on fire. I grabbed a lifebelt, and four of us were picked up within twenty minutes by a boat from another ship."

GERMANS TALK OF "SUPER-BOMBS"

TRYING TO END WAR QUICKLY

ASSOCIATED PRESS,

BERLIN, Monday.

"LONDON will be blasted with millions of pounds of bombs as long as attacks on Germany continued," the official German News Agency announced. After Goering, the Supreme Commander of the Luftwaffe, broadcast that Hitler had entrusted him with the task of attacking "the heart of the British Empire," the German radio announced: "The judgment has come. The German sword from the skies is striking with ever more momentous strokes."

German circles said that Germany seeks to force a quick end to the war. To achieve this, her airmen have now been supplied with "super" bombs of the largest and most destructive type ever used in modern warfare. These bombs, it was said, are of a type reserved for knock-out blows on special objectives which call for most powerful explosives. It was claimed that one bomb is capable of levelling anything within five hundred yards.

Speculation in Berlin as to whether the new campaign on London is meant to be "der tag" centred around Goering's personal leadership of the attacks. Germans generally believe that Goering is associated only with major air operations.

Military spokesmen here declare that the two large-scale attacks showed that "England is not able to protect its capital."

While official German sources claim that London is practically ablaze from end to end, it is admitted that the British anti-aircraft defence is "vigorous and sometimes effective."

ITALIAN PRAISE FOR R.A.F.

The Italian Radio goes so far as to praise the R.A.F. "The British pursuit 'planes fought brilliantly and without sparing themselves. The anti-aircraft artillery, however, proved inadequate," it said.

Among the important objectives which the Germans claim to have hit in the London area are Woolwich docks, several industrial plants, one powder magazine and one railway station.

A German communiqué issued to-day stated:—"Several aerodromes in the vicinity of Lincoln were also attacked. Off the Firth of Forth a British merchant ship of 8,000 tons was severely damaged."

Announcing that British 'planes had last night bombed Hamburg, the suburb of Lueneburg and Kiel, damaging, it is alleged, many houses and causing some civilian casualties, the German High Command communiqué, referring to the Hamburg raid, adds: "Sixty to seventy bombs were dropped deliberately and according to plan on dwellinghouses."

A German Radio announcement which followed the communiqué said: "Numerous German towns, and recently Berlin in particular, have been bombed by British pirate fliers, who deliberately aimed at the residential quarters of Berlin."

RAIDS ON LONDON

institution in East London. The bomb crashed through one of the wards to the main kitchen and demolished a whole section of a new building.

The twelve dead were the sole occupants of the ward. People in other blocks were unhurt. A member of the rescue party discovered among the debris a piece of casing which is believed to be half the torpedo.

Considerable damage was done in South-East London. A bomb which dropped behind a church broke nearly all the windows. Houses were wrecked. On the other side of the road a furniture shop was burned out and part of the roadway was torn up. A large number of shop windows were broken. Nearby a large block of working-class flats were damaged. Window frames were blown out. A large house was demolished by the bomb. Two houses were wrecked in a nearby road. A number of working-class houses were demolished in one area and casualties occurred.

HOSPITAL WORKER DEAD

BODY RECOVERED FROM WRECKAGE

The body of a young woman, a member of the massage staff of a central London hospital damaged in the raid on Sunday night, was recovered from the débris last night. Rescue squads had worked feverishly to free her from the tons of mashed masonry beneath which she was imprisoned.

She was still living as they cut their way through to the edge of the nurses' home, where, 50 feet above street level, she had been located.

Doctors handed food to the woman and administered a morphia injection and oxygen. Hours after she had been trapped her body was freed, but a steel girder still prevented her removal.

The nurse was Miss Mortimer Thomas, whose age is stated as 32. She had been at the hospital since 1923, when she began training there. Her home was in Australia. She had friends in Leeds.

FIVE OTHERS MISSING

Five other women buried in the débris have been given up as lost.

They are:—Miss Marguerite Doucet, of Parkside, Wimbledon; Miss Stephanie Neda Dunn, Kingswood Vicarage, Tadworth; Miss Gwendolen Lockyer, of Harley street, London (members of the massage staff of the hospital); Miss Cynthia Graham, Walkero, Bunglope, near Bradford-on-Avon; Miss Sarah E. Durham, of the "Coach and Horses," Llanfals, Brecon (South Wales), nurses.

Miss Dunn's father is Canon W. A. Dunn, Vicar of Kingswood, Tadworth.

SATURDAY'S CASUALTIES

MINISTRY REPORT ON SUNDAY'S RAIDS

According to information in London yesterday the number of people who lost their lives in Saturday night's raids is 306, and 1,337 seriously injured.

The British Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security issued the following communiqué yesterday afternoon:—

"Reports of the damage caused in the attacks on London last night are not yet complete, but some figures can now be given. Attacks were severe and continued throughout the hours of darkness. Bombing was widespread over the London area, and was for the most part indiscriminate. The damage was heavy, and comprised many targets of a non-military character, including three hospitals and two museums.

"The number of casualties cannot at present be assessed, though, so far as information is available, it is not anticipated that the numbers will exceed those of Saturday.

Simple recipe restores colour to

Grey Hair

Take years off your looks by giving your grey hair back its youthful colour. It's simple, safe, inexpensive, quick! Here's the recipe. To ¼ pint of water add one ounce of Bay Rum, a small box of Orlex Compound and a quarter ounce of glycerine. That's all! Any chemist will make it up or supply the ingredients. Apply the mixture twice weekly and your grey hair will soon glow with natural colour. Orlex isn't sticky, won't rub off and doesn't colour the scalp. Tear out this recipe and begin saying good-bye to grey hair to-day.

NEW POLICY IN RUMANIA

Administration to be Reorganised

YOUNG KING AWAITS MOTHER'S RETURN

GENERAL ANTONESCU, the Rumanian dictator, yesterday outlined his policy at a Cabinet meeting, according to the German radio. His main aims, the announcer said, were to raise the standard of life of the peasants, to improve the position of workers, to reorganise the administration and the Civil Service, and to take measures for the protection of Rumanian family life.

King Michael and General Antonescu attended a Te Deum in Bucharest Cathedral yesterday. Crowds cheered the young King as he drove through the streets. At the same time Services were held in all Rumanian Churches to commemorate his Accession to the Throne and the introduction of the new régime.

FLORENCE (ITALY), Monday.

Princess Helen, mother of King Michael, arrived here to-day from Dresden.

ANTI-JEWISH DRIVE RENEWED

POLICE PREFECT ARRESTED

PRESS ASSOCIATION FOREIGN SPECIAL,

BUCHAREST, Monday.

King Michael spent to-day as one of the loneliest boys in Rumania, while final preparations were being made at the Palace for the arrival of his mother to-morrow.

He had as his sole and constant companion his personal Adjutant, Colonel Damaceano, who has been with him for years, and who had succeeded more than anyone else in the Palace in gaining the confidence of the boy King.

Colonel Damaceano, a tall, handsome officer of about fifty, who was once Military Attaché in Rome, has been with King Michael since the date of King Carol's abdication when, it is said, King Michael at one moment wept openly.

King Michael spent to-day pacing the empty corridors of the Palace until all was properly prepared for the return of his mother, of whom he is very fond.

OFFICIALS DISMISSED

Many more of the Court officials associated with the former King have been turned from the Palace, and many of those who were with Queen Helen before she separated from King Carol are now returning.

The violent attacks on King Carol before he left Rumania have greatly distressed both King Michael and Queen Helen. Circles close to the Queen to-day stated that she had sent an urgent telegram to General Antonescu urging him that all such attacks against her former husband should stop before her arrival in Bucharest.

BID FAILS

Colonel Gabriel Marinescu, the Prefect of Police of Bucharest, and an intimate friend of King Carol, has attempted to escape from Rumania, but was detained at the Yugo-Slav frontier. Making a desperate bid for liberty he reached a small island in the Danube, midway between the Rumanian and Yugo-Slav banks, but was there overtaken by Iron Guards, who arrested him and brought him back to Bucharest. He was later released.

Written orders have now been issued to the frontier police to refuse any political personalities the right to pass the frontiers. Colonel Marinescu accompanied King Carol when he returned to Rumania ten years ago, and one of his chief duties was to guard the safety of Madame Lupescu.

SHOTS AT HOUSE

There was evidence of hostility against Madame Lupescu early to-day, when two shots were fired outside her former house by an unknown demonstrator.

The anti-Jewish régime initiated under King Carol is being pursued by Rumania's new régime with increased severity. The rights of Jewish merchants henceforth will be strictly limited by a decree published to-day by the Ministry of Religions and Arts.

Only one synagogue will be allowed to every four hundred families in towns, and one to every two hundred families in villages.

The same Ministry announced earlier that all Jewish employés of the Ministry had been dismissed. No Jewish artist has the right to perform in State or private theatres or in any kind of public entertainment.

PRISONERS RELEASED

Several hundred persons who have been sent to concentration camps in recent weeks for spreading alarmist rumours have been released.

SOVIET CHARGES AGAINST CAROL

BLAME FOR FRONTIER INCIDENTS

PRESS ASSOCIATION FOREIGN SPECIAL.

MOSCOW, Monday

Allegations that ex-King Carol is to blame for the recent incidents on the Soviet-Rumanian frontier are made in an article published in the semi-official Pravada to-day. The article is written by the newspaper's correspondent at Kishinev.

According to reports reaching Bessarabia, he says, ex-King Carol and his entourage have for some time been conducting negotiations with a view to the cession of a considerable part of Transylvania in return for an Axis guarantee. In order to justify this policy to the Rumanian people, the writer continues, the ex-King and his followers incited the Army and the Air Force to provocative acts, knowing that such acts would not pass unanswered by the U.S.S.R.

TO CREATE FRICTION?

The correspondent says that the incidents were used to spread the rumour that Rumania was threatened by the Soviet Union, and that the only way to save the country was to cede Transylvania and obtain an Axis guarantee.

"King Carol," the paper comments, "apparently expected such a development to create friction between Germany and the U.S.S.R." The Soviet statement, it adds, was not published in Rumania owing to fears that it might reveal the provocative action of the leaders. The present Government in Rumania, it concludes, has exposed the provocative policy of King Carol and his clique, banished King Carol and punished his entourage.

BULGARIA CELEBRATES

SOFIA, Monday

Bells were rung and flags were hung out in Bulgaria to-day to celebrate the return of the Southern Dobruja to Bulgaria. Crowds thronged the streets of Sofia from an early hour.

King Boris and Queen Joanna attended a Thanksgiving Service, and later there was a big procession past the Palace.—(Reuter.)

Sent to Reformatory.—At Portadown yesterday, two fifteen-year-old boys were sent to a reformatory for three years for breaking into a fruit store and stealing goods and a clock to the value of £8 15s. 7d., and causing damage to the extent of £1 15s. 9d. One of them has appealed. Two younger boys were dealt with under the Probation Act.

CAROL'S EXILE PLANS

No Ban on Entry to Canada

REQUEST TO FRENCH GOVERNMENT

ZURICH, Monday.

EX-KING CAROL, accompanied by Madame Lupescu and by M. Urdarianu, Head of the Royal Household, is occupying, in a Lugano hotel, the same rooms which were formerly occupied by his father, King Ferdinand, and by King Constantine of Greece, on his abdication.

Carol, who has not left his rooms since his arrival, is not expected to stay long in Switzerland before leaving for Lisbon, but his plans are not yet fixed.

The special Royal train, many windows of which were shattered by bullets during the attempt on Carol's life, will return to Rumania in two days' time with thirty members of King Carol's household staff.—(Reuter).

WOULD BE BANNED

OTTAWA, Monday.

Reports received here that ex-King Carol may go to Canada to live in exile have aroused interest and speculation here. As far as can be learned in official circles there would be no ban on his entry to the Dominion.

Immigration officials said that if Madame Lupescu sought to enter the Dominion with Carol, regulations would bar her entry.—(Reuter.)

WANTS TO GO TO RIVIERA

LUGANO, Monday.

Carol, in long telephone conversations with Government authorities in France and other countries, tried to pave the way to-day for the next move in his exile.

It was understood that Carol wanted to go as soon as possible to the French Riviera to live in one of his villas, but the French Government was believed to be uncertain about welcoming him in view of German hostility to him.—(Associated Press).

REPRESENTATION ENDED

FRENCH ORDER TO ENVOYS

VICHY, Monday.

The French Government has decided, following a request from the German Government, to terminate the diplomatic representation in France of Governments "who no longer exercise authority in their respective countries, which are, in fact, occupied by the German armies, and who no longer reside in those countries," announces the Havas News Agency.—(P.A. War Special.)

FUNERAL

MR. WILLIAM USHER

The funeral of Mr. William Usher, Brennanstown, Cabinteely, Co. Dublin, took place to Dean's Grange Cemetery, yesterday morning, when the Service was conducted by the Archdeacon of Glendalough. Mr. Usher was a well-known horticulturist and acted as judge at many shows; he was also a very successful exhibitor.

The chief mourners were:—S. R. Usher and H. E. Usher (sons), S. J. Usher, H. Usher and E. Usher (brothers); Mrs. Tyrrell (sister), S. Sutton (son-in-law), J. B. Hall, E. Murray, G. A. Hall, T. Coyne (brothers-in-law); Mrs. Murray (sister-in-law), E. S. Usher, W. F. Usher, T. H. G. Hall (nephews).

WEDDING

MR. B. R. McKINLEY AND MISS M. MURDOCK

The wedding took place yesterday at St. Peter's Church of Mr. B. R. McKinley, son of the late Mr. B. M. McKinley and of Mrs. McKinley, Bridge street, Newry, and Miss Marjorie Murdock, daughter of the late Mr. F. W. Murdock and of Mrs. Murdock, 25 Fair street, Drogheda.

The Rev. C. S. Stewart, M.A., T.C.D., officiated.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. C. W. Murdock, wore an ivory satin gown, and carried a bouquet of dark red roses.

Miss Brenda McKinley was bridesmaid and Mr. Ernest D. Murdock acted as best man.

The honeymoon is being spent in the South of Ireland.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE MOUNT STREET CLUB

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It has recently been stated that the Dublin Trades Union Council does not, and never did, agree with the general working of the Mount Street Club. I am, therefore, directed by the board of governors of the club to ask if you will be good enough to publish the following statement.

Following on complaints made by certain unions that the club was infringing trade union principles, a deputation from the Dublin Trades Union Council visited the club last year and discussed with the governors every aspect of its principles and working. Shortly afterwards I received the following letter, dated 5th October, 1939, from the Dublin Trades Union Council:—

"Dear Mr. Newcome,—

"Our deputation which waited on your club management reported to the Council at its meeting on Tuesday evening. They reported the work you were doing and the manner in which it was being done.

"I was directed to say that, as far as the relief of unemployment is concerned, they fully sympathise with you and thank you for your efforts. And, if your work was confined to that, they would have nothing but praise for your endeavours. They have, however, to consider another aspect of the question: the continuation of the protection of craft interests in the different trades. They feel it will be only necessary to point out that the danger of supplying in excess of the demand would mean the destruction of the trades, their arts and their crafts.

"They accordingly directed me to point out that if there is no attempt to send men who are unskilled—or even semi-skilled—to do the work of skilled mechanics, and if there is no inducement held out to them to encroach on the rights of skilled workers, any objection this Council might ever have raised would be withdrawn. However, so strong do they feel upon this question of the interests of the crafts that everything which encroaches upon their rights must be condemned by the Council.

"Yours very sincerely,

"(Signed) P. T. Daly,

"Secretary."

I am directed to say that the club has never sent unskilled or semi-skilled men to do the work of skilled men. The club was never intended to carry out any of the functions of a labour exchange. Its object is to remove from enforced idleness as many men as its funds will permit. This can only be done by the creation of new work; it obviously cannot be achieved merely by obtaining for a particular man (who happens to be a member of the club) work which would otherwise be done by someone else.

It might be suggested that, by enabling its members to provide themselves with their material needs, the club is "holding out an inducement to them to encroach on the rights of skilled workers." This, however, can hardly be seriously maintained, since a memorandum from the National Executive of the Irish Trades Union Congress, dated 11th November, 1936, and published in the 43rd annual report of that body, recommends a scheme which corresponds in this respect very closely with that operating in the Mount Street Club. The relevant passages are as follows:—

"After very much serious consideration as to how the condition of the unemployed workers may be improved from taxation or rating, it would seem that the land is now the final and permanent hope. By no other means can idle labour be utilised to improve its well-being.

"It is, therefore, suggested that an experiment should be tried with the establishment of an agricultural 'community,' constituted of volunteers from among the unemployed for self-sustenance, on an estate to be purchased by the Government, the estate to be made the basis of the 'agricultural community.'

. . . . "Instructors of various kinds should be attached to the 'agricultural community,' under whose instructions not only could nearly all the material needs of the members be provided by them selves, but higher education could also be easily imparted. Sports, both indoor and outdoor, with physical culture, could be established at very little cost. Thus would the intellectual and material lives of many thousand of workers be saved from the corrosion and vitiation which is imposed on them to-day because no adequate provision is made for their bodily sustenance, and no provision whatever for their higher intellectual improvement."

Any conceivable objection which might remain would be removed if the club membership included enough tradesmen to carry out all the work requiring skill. This would also have the effect of increasing the benefits available for all members. The governors have on several occasions invited trade unions to co-operate in this matter.

Miss Louie Bennett, in her interesting letter published on the 7th instant, suggests that the trade union movement should associate itself closely with the club in order to avert any danger that it may visualise. There are, in fact, several prominent and trusted trade unionists on the board of governors, and many among the supporters of the club. Moreover, the Dublin Trades Union Council, through their deputation to the club, were invited to nominate representatives to the board of governors.

We have found that most criticisms made by trade unionists are based on the mistaken idea that members of the club are in some way employés. It cannot be too strongly emphasised that the members work co-operatively and share among themselves everything that they produce.

In conclusion, I am directed to say that the governors of the Mount Street Club welcome Miss Bennett's suggestion that a similar scheme should be adopted for women. While they have always considered that such a scheme would have to be organised by women, they would do everything in their power to ensure its success.—Yours, etc.,

J. J. NEWCOME, P.C., Hon. Secretary,
The Mount Street Club, Dublin.

LIMERICK LABOUR DISPUTE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—We, the Limerick Branch of the Federation of Builders of Eire, having read your article on the labour dispute in the building industry in this city, gather from your remarks that you are not quite aware of the circumstances leading up to the strike. The facts are as follows:—

"On 29th June, 1940, a request was received from the Limerick Operative Plasterers' Society, the Limerick Brick and Stone Layers' Society, the Plumbers', Glaziers' and Domestic Engineers' Union and the Limerick Branch I.T. and G.W.U. for a conference to discuss a revision of wages. This conference had already been made by other branches of this Federation with trade union leaders representing about 40,000 workers engaged in the building industry throughout the country.

On 14th August, 1940, we received a demand from the Limerick City Guild of Carpenters and Joiners for an increase of 3d. per hour to become operative as from 5th July, 1940. We offered the Guild the same terms as those offered to and accepted by all the other trades and labour bodies. Our offer was not accepted, and the Guild of Carpenters and Joiners withdrew their men from all members of this Federation in the city, and the premises of our members are now being picketed, apparently for the purpose of indicating to the public that a wage of £4 12s. per week is not adequate for the services of members of the Guild of Carpenters and Joiners. At the same time, members of this Guild continue to work for private firms and for builders, not members of this Federation, for the old rate of wages without any increase being paid. This obviously is not a strike but a boycott, and a boycott against a body of employers who have always maintained a decent standard of wages and met their employés on all occasions with goodwill. In view of this attitude of the Guild, we have had no option to notify the Guild that our agreement with them is now terminated.

At the request of Mr. Berkery, City Manager, we met the Rev. Father Gorey, C.S.S.R.; Mr. James McQuane, Chairman Limerick Trades' Council; Mr. Michael Keyes, T.D.; Mr. James Reidy, T.D., and Mr. Berkery at the Town Hall on Wednesday, 4th inst., and stated the full facts of the case for their benefit. They asked us to meet the Guild of Carpenters and Joiners for the purpose of stating our case to them in a friendly spirit. We acceded to this request, and met the representatives of the Guild at the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday, 5th inst., but regret that this meeting proved abortive.

In conclusion, we feel that the attitude of the Guild of Carpenters and Joiners is most unreasonable, particularly as all other workers engaged in the building industry throughout the country have accepted the increase of 1d. per hour as offered by us to the Guild.—Yours, etc.,

For and on behalf of the Federation of Builders, Contractors and Allied Employers of Ireland (Limerick and District Branch), THOMAS GOUGH (Chairman).

BERMUDA

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your correspondent, "W.B.D.," is not quite accurate in his description of life in Bermuda.

He states that, "no Yankee hustle ever breaks the halcyon quiet that pervades it." On the contrary, Bermuda being the playground of American millionaires, who fill its palatial hotels during the season from October till May, "whoopee" is the order of the day (and night) in the sports clubs and ballrooms there. Every form of amusement is indulged in, and it is by no means a country for a poor man. In fact, in spite of no income tax, the cost of living is so high that it is only the chosen few who can taste of its delights.

By the way, Bermuda is composed of over 300 islands, not 100, as "W.B.D." has stated, and is it not the Bahamas where the Duke of Windsor has elected to settle?—they are a totally different proposition from Bermuda.

I have lived in the latter island, and so was specially interested in your article in to-day's Irish Times.—Yours, etc.,

MURIEL FITZGERALD.

GROUP B, L.S.F.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—On behalf of Group A, Local Security Force, Howth, I wish to extend our thanks to those members of Group B and of the various auxiliary services, who did so much to help us.

For every combatant in the field there should be at least six persons rendering services essential to his efficient operation. In the tactical scheme carried out on Sunday there were more than 2,000 civilian soldiers drawn from all sections of the community, and they were supported actively by approximately 1,000 members of Group B and auxiliary services.

These voluntary services are not spectacular; they are all the more deserving of appreciation. For them we extend the gratitude of our group.—Yours, etc.,

J. BAYLEY BUTLER,
Adjt., Group A, L.S.F., Howth.

THE DUBLIN "ZOO"

SOME NEW STOCK

How the war and the resultant decline in tourist traffic has affected the attendances at the Dublin Zoo is shown by the figures disclosed at the members' breakfast, which was held at the Zoological Gardens on Saturday.

In August 24,001 people visited the Gardens, as compared with 38,255 in the previous year, a decrease of 14,254. Irish people, on the whole, however, are supporting the Zoo.

Since the last members' breakfast the following stock has been received:—Two budgerigars (donor, Mr. L. D. Hickey, Greville road, Blackrock); one female Rhesus monkey (Mr. Maffay, Inchicore); pair white bantams (Mr. Cecil Wright, Dalkey); five bar-headed geese and five Chinese geese, born in the Gardens; sixteen Pekin ducks, three call ducks, four cross bantams and guinea fowl kindly hatched out for the Society by Miss Rachel Craigie, and eleven guinea fowl born in the Gardens.

The two male tigers and three female Sumatra tigers on deposit from Bertram Mills's circus for the duration of the war are a valuable addition to the Society's collection, and are well worth a visit to the Gardens.

Lord Moyne, who is interested in his native Zoo, is presenting a valuable gift of a female Siamang gibbon, which is, from all accounts, a great pet. Her name is "Miss Gibbs."

The Council thank the many generous friends of the Society who have supplied fruit and vegetables, such as apples, cabbages and lettuce.

The President (Lord HolmPatrick) welcomed Captain J. Fallon, a very generous donor of the Society, saying it was very nice to receive donations of animals, and the Society were also always very glad to have the donors present with them on such occasions as the members' breakfasts.

Those also present included:—Mr. Edward H. Burne and Miss Violet Burne, Sir Frederick and Lady Moore, Captain and Mrs. A. S. Gordon, the Misses Moore, Mrs. Waterstone and party, Professor J. Kay Jamieson and Miss Jamieson, Lady Dowdall, Mrs. John Loftus, Miss Dean, Dr. Hewitt Haughton, Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Praeger, Mrs. G. Vaughan Hart and Miss Hart, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Bewley, Mrs. E. A. Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Millar, Dr. and Mrs. Matson, Mr. and Mrs. Tighe, Miss Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Dinnen Gilmore, Mrs. Coote Duggan, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. G. Shackleton, Dr. and Mrs. J. Fleming, Mr. Edward Solomons, Mr. P. L. Healy, Mr. C. Lefroy Brooks and Mr. and Mrs. St. Leger Evans.

Not for Shops.—Omagh Urban Council, on a strictly party vote—the Nationalists being the minority—decided that no tenant of a Council house be allowed to use any portion of such house as a shop.

"Fitness comes from the inside and if you have the habit of morning Eno's, you must know what I mean. A glass of Eno's brightens your eyes and your outlook. You will find Eno's is as pleasant to take as it is gentle and effective."

Non-toxic, non-habit forming it stands alone as the ideal natural aid to every-day fitness. Remember, Doctors and Nurses everywhere take and recommend Eno's Fruit Salt.

AN EARLY HARVEST

FARM CONDITIONS IN AUGUST

Last month was the finest August over most of the country for many years. This statement appears in the report on agricultural conditions issued by the Department of Agriculture. In the North-West, including Sligo and Donegal, the weather was unsettled, but fine, dry intervals enabled harvesting operations to be carried out extensively.

The saving of grain crops, which had ripened early, occupied most of the farmers' attention. Cutting and saving of late meadows, as well as cutting for aftermaths and silage, were also carried out, and a substantial proportion of the earlier-saved hay was collected into sheds and ricks. Conditions were excellent for the spraying of potatoes, the clearing of root crops, or the carting and stacking of turf. In the case of flax, pulling and subsequent handling were general in Northern counties.

Threshing began earlier than usual and was well advanced by the end of the month. Some ploughing of stubble was done for the sowing of catch crops, and, generally speaking, August has seen all seasonal work on the farm advanced by from two to three weeks.

Growth of pastures received a check owing to prolonged drought, and on light, high-lying land near the coast shortage of pasture towards the winter will probably cause heavy inroads upon foodstuffs which would otherwise be kept in reserve. In Southern areas pasture conditions left much to be desired, but the deeper and better-class ground of the Midlands carried a fair covering of grass. In the North the rainfall was sufficient to enable pastures to present a normal appearance.

On farms which lack a constant water supply considerable time was occupied in transporting water for stock.

The continued drought and shortage of grass had a depressing effect on milk yields, which were below the customary level for the month of August.

GATE THEATRE

"ANTHONY AND ANNA"

The Clopet-Yorke Productions, who are in the midst of a season of repertory at the Gate Theatre, are presenting this week St. John Ervine's comedy, "Anthony and Anna," and the company, which had shown promise on previous occasions, was seen to very much greater advantage last night.

The play, although slight, has definite entertainment value, and should prove popular during its run.

As might be expected from the pen of St. John Ervine, the dialogue is really witty in places, and the humour was well sustained throughout, until a somewhat weak ending.

The action takes place in a country inn, where an American millionaire and his daughter are staying, and where an author and an idealistic young man with an unconventional philanthropy foregather and proceed to woo the lady.

Mairin Hayes as the attractive American girl looked the part, and coped successfully with her accent, and Guy Rolfe as her father gave a good, straightforward performance.

The honours of the evening, however, were divided between Dennis Barry and Jane Aird, as a wealthy Lancashire industrialist and his affianced daughter of an earl. Their scenes together were spontaneous and delightfully entertaining, and Dennis Barry gave an excellent interpretation of his part.

Cecil Brock was good in a character rôle—that of the priggish author; and another good characterisation was given by Stanley Illesley as the elderly waiter.

Nigel Fitzgerald had the principal rôle of the idealistic adventurer who refused to take a job until circumstances became too much for him. It was a long part, with little variety, and he sustained the interest well.

Jon Haerem completed the cast.

The production was in the hands of Mr. Carl F. Clopet.

"A Mean Theft."—Describing it as "a particularly mean type of theft," Mr. J. C. Austin, R.M., at Portadown yesterday, fined Joseph Prescott, 19 Meadow lane, Portadown, for stealing coal from the yard of a neighbour, Mrs. Margaret Kidd. He was also bound to the peace for using threatening language.

THREE-YEAR-OLD FORM

Hurst Park St. Leger Standard Not Likely to be High

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Monday Night.

IT is mildly interesting to compare the entries for the Hurst Park St. Leger with the Free Handicap of the two-year-olds published at the back-end of last season, and the comparison seems to suggest that the pack of three-year-olds at present ready to go out and hunt the elusive prize money is not exactly an inspiring one.

By a coincidence the admitted best of our three-year-olds, Pont L'Eveque, winner of the New Derby, had not come under Mr. Arthur Fawcett's notice and was not included in his compilation. He put Tant Mieux top weight and a pound above the colt by Colombo out of Rose of England.

The former, after demonstrating that he had distinct stamina limitations, has been sent to India, while the Rose of England colt, after proving a complete disappointment, has been shot out of the country.

The Trainer Disagrees

The third name in the Free Handicap is that of Stardust, who ran in the New Derby like a non-stayer and has been condemned on that account. It is fairly clear that his trainer does not quite agree with this estimate, because if he had convinced himself that such was the case he would hardly have taken an entry for him in the Hurst Park race, which is to be run over a mile, seven furlongs and 65 yards.

Black Toni was placed a pound below Stardust and has suggested that he is a stayer, but a little deficient in speed. Then we come to Golden Penny, 9st. 4lb., who seems to have been retired, and next to her we have Fair Test, who has completely failed this season on racecourses to run up to the form which he shows at home.

Proven Merit

At 9st. 2lb. in the Free Handicap we have Turkhan, who has proven his merit, and will be regarded as the chief danger to Pont l'Eveque in the Hurst Park event. After him there comes Godiva, who is dead, and Snowberry and Epilobeum, who are not entered at Hurst Park

This comprises those handicapped with 9st. or more, and after them we find Hippius with 8st. 13lb. The rest of the Hurst Park entry is made up of oddments that were either not included in the Free Handicap, or else were regarded as a stone and more behind the best.

A Little Wrong

It will be very difficult, therefore, to get up a raging interest in such races for three-year-olds as may take place this season. There seems something a little wrong when a colt that was thought to be only worth about a monkey last back-end should be regarded, and quite rightly, too, on public form, as the best of the lot.

It can be argued, of course, that the sadly broken season has not given an opportunity to backward colts to demonstrate undiscovered possibilities, but they had a pretty fair run up till June, and if a three-year-old is not beginning to show somebody something by the month of June, it is a fair assumption that he is not going to show a vast amount later in first-class company

KNIGHT OF VENOSAS SCORES EASILY

Only One Set-Back for Backers at Mullingar

SMALL fields made the racing at Mullingar yesterday rather tame, but the going was better at the Newbrook course than could have been expected. Backers of favourites had a right royal time, for only in one instance did the best-fancied candidate fail. This break in the run of their luck occurred over the well-endowed Stand Steeplechase, for which Chief Count was the best backed. Mr. G. J. Byrne's horse never held out much hope to his supporters, and the race was won from end to end by Knight of Venosas, who, it will be remembered, was going well at the time he fell in the Red Cross Steeplechase at Leopardstown. A son of Knight of Kilcash, he is now owned by Captain C. B. Harty, one of the team of Irish Army riders who earned such fame for the country in all parts of the world. Mr. H. Harty, who rode the horse, is his nephew and son of the ex-steeplechase rider, Henry Harty.

Melmoon, owned by Miss M. Ballesty, had an easy task to win the Midleton Hurdle; and Bright Child, whose only previous successes had been gained at Powerstown Park, showed that he is not a one-course horse by romping home an easy winner of the Mullingar Plate. Miss Dorothy Paget was not present to see him win, but we understand that she is still as enthusiastic as ever about her horses, and is highly pleased when any of them wins a race in Ireland.

One of the easiest victories of the afternoon was that of Mr. L. Ward's The Swift in the September Plate, and Harvest Sun also came home in effortless style in front of two other runners for the Autumn Plate. This son of Trigo had been in many trainers' hands without meeting with any great success, but since Mr. J. T. Clinton purchased him cheaply after a race at Dundalk and sent him to be trained by Mr. J. Cox he has become a reformed character, due, it is thought, to the careful handling he gets from young Mr. "Bunny" Cox, who has ridden him in all his home work, and also steered him to victory in this race.

Some tone was lent to the proceedings by the presence in the field for the three miles steeplechase of Fet, a Cesarewitch winner, who nearly created a record by winning the big long-distance handicap a second time. He had been running in steeplechases in Ireland for some time, but his victory now over two moderate opponents was his first success over fences. It was by no means a polished performance; for he jumped in clumsy fashion, but was just a bit better than the other two. Details:—

THE IRISH CLOSE CHAMPIONSHIPS

READ AND McHALE SHOW GOOD FORM

It is early in the week as yet for surprises in the Irish Close Championships at Elm Park, and yesterday's play proceeded on quiet lines. J. McHale, P. Read and E. H. Porter all reached the last eight of the men's singles, and none of them had any great difficulty in doing so. The best performance was that of Porter, who slowed down the game so successfully against F. H. Ballagh that the latter, trying all the time for winners off the ground, made a number of errors.

Finding a weakness in H. Morris's back-hand corner, J. McHale used it at the right time, and although the majority of the games went to deuce, Morris could only win five in the two sets. Read was deadly accurate against D. Miley, especially with his passing shots, and a lot of good play by the loser met with little reward.

Two good players, Miss E. Lombard and Miss N. Conway, met in the first round of the women's singles, and the former staged a great finish to win in two sets. It was touch and go throughout a long first set, in which Miss Conway's excellent footwork enabled her to pick up a proportion of apparent winners. Miss Conway led 2-0 in the second set, but by placing shot after shot in the corners of the court Miss Lombard won six in a row for the match. Both Miss D. Curley, the Irish champion, and Miss M. Nichols won easily, the latter being in brilliant form against Miss P. Cowdy.

In the men's doubles, C. A. Kemp and E. H. Maynard, the Co. Wicklow champions, showed some of the form they revealed at Bray by defeating H. F. Cronin and M. Solomons for the loss of four games. Their combination was excellent and their ground shots and low volleying very crisp. Results:—

MEN'S SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP—First Round.
E. H. Porter beat D. J. Sinnott—6-0, 6-0.
D. A. Good beat T. Gargan—5-7, 6-3, 6-2.

GREYHOUND RACING

DUSKY DASHER WINS IN GOOD TIME

ANOTHER SUCCESS FOR RED BOGEY

The Bir Dog Dusky Dasher, put up the best performance last night at Shelbourne Park, when he won his qualifying heat in the Irish Greyhound Derby in the fast time of 30.84 secs. He was not too well away, and Kuadza led for a good part of the journey, but, rounding the last bend into the straight, Dusky Dasher went to the front to win a good finish by a length. Red Bogey added to recent successes by taking the Shelbourne Hurdle, and Trailing Back led all the way to win the Clounanna Stake by a distance. Details:

RUGBY FOOTBALL

DUBLIN CLUBS AT PRACTICE

WEEK-END ACTIVITY AT LANSDOWNE ROAD

Wanderers and Lansdowne clubs held their opening practices in preparation of the season on Saturday at Lansdowne road. Both clubs had a full turn-out, and judging by the general keenness, prospects seem very good. Wanderers, despite the loss of M. Murray and R. Wilkinson, C. Preston and J. E. Brooks, promise to be stronger than last year. Of last year's players, C. R. Graves, J. Spicer, H. Sterling, Rev. T. Horan, L. N. Horan, F. Cruise, W. Brooks, A. Robertson, F. Cruise, C. Fox and W. Smith were seen out on Saturday, while newcomers on view included Rev. B. Harvey (Dublin University), J. A. Gregory (Imperial Tobacco Co.), and B. Solomons (Dublin University). Wanderers will field four teams, with A. B. Robertson captaining the first side.

Lansdowne will be strengthened by the inclusion of J. Thompson (U.C.D.) and T. Prendiville (U.C.D.). O. Murray, the Castleknock and schools inter-provincial out-half, has also joined Lansdowne. Among last season's players are B. Sutherland, who will captain the side; C. Murphy, J. Cagney, T. Kearns, F. Cosgrave, T. Cosgrave, J. Dwyer, J. Murray, B. Kelly, J. Coffey, B. Mitchell, P. Delaney, H. Vard, T. Sinnott and M. Power.

Palmerston Club will hold its opening practice to-morrow at Clonskeagh at 5.30, and all members and intending members are requested to attend.

SWIMMING

TITLES GO TO CORK

At Limerick on Saturday W. Dineen, a fifteen years old member of the Republican Club, Cork, won the half-mile championship of Munster in 15 mins. 10 secs., and J. ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL

SMOOTH DISPLAY BY BELFAST CELTIC

BIG CROWD ATTENDS BENEFIT MATCH

BELFAST CELTIC... 4 BOHEMIANS......... 0

There was a good-sized attendance last night for the benefit match in aid of Charlie Harris, the former well-known athlete, and now prominently identified with the training of players. So far this season Bohemians have not succeeded in getting together a good side, and this was again demonstrated in last evening's game, in which the amateurs were decisively beaten by Celtic, who, as usual, were a popular drawing card with Dublin football followers.

Kevin O'Flanagan made his first appearance of the season at centre-forward for Bohemians, and displayed plenty of his customary enterprise, but he lacked competent support, and with Bohemians, apart from a period of the second half, never moving with the same degree of understanding, Celtic won readily without being really extended.

Celtic got their first goal ten minutes before the interval, when Kernoghan got past Ratcliffe and sent to O'Connor, for the latter to score readily. The second goal came in the first minute of the second half, McAlinden running through almost from half-way to completely outwit the Bohemian defence. Landers saved cleverly from O'Connor before Nelson headed Celtic's third goal twenty-three minutes after the re-start, and, though Bohemians had long spells of pressure, during one of which Horlacher was just wide with a terrific drive, Celtic maintained the upper-hand throughout, and completed the scoring when McAlinden got the fourth five minutes from the end.

Bohemians—C. Landers; K. Kerr, P. Ratcliffe; P. O'Kane, J. Clarke, A. Horlacher; P. Morris, S. Moore, K. O'Flanagan, W. Jordan, F. Fullen.

Belfast Celtic—Twomey; McMullan, R. P. Fulton; Kelly, Vernon, Leathem; Kernoghan, McIlroy, O'Connor, McAlinden, Nelson.

JUNIOR LEAGUE

CLONTARF .... 76 PORTRANE 39

Clontarf went a step nearer winning the Junior League Championship when they defeated Portrane at Donnycarney by 37 shots. Clontarf have only one more match to play. Skips and Rink scores:

Clontarf—P. Mahon 23, D. Whelan 30 and Wat Robinson 23.

Portrane—L. Doyle 9, C. Kane 17 and J. Brennan 13.

MOTOR CYCLING

P. GILL'S NEW IRISH RECORD

Peter Gill made a new Irish record in the 250 c.c. class when he attained a speed of 88.15 m.p.h. over the flying quarter mile at the spring meeting of the Dublin and District M.C.C. at Turvey avenue, Donabate, on Saturday. His speed was beaten only by three machines of twice the engine size, best of which was E. Lyons's Triumph Twin, which averaged 98.93 m.p.h. on its one run. Lyons also made best speed in the 350 c.c. category, with 84.34 m.p.h., which gave him a handicap win. R. Wagner (490 Norton), 94.94, and J. Gibney (496 B.S.A.), 91.66 m.p.h., were second and third fastest of the day. Gibney was fastest in the rolling start and standing start classes, in which he averaged 65.54 and 55.60 m.p.h., respectively. But for a re-handicap he would have won both Master Joseph C. Hogan (Clongowes Wood College), with the swimming trophies he has won this season. They are: The 100 Metres (Boys' Handicap) Cup, the 1,500 Metres (Boys' Handicap) Morgan Byrne Cup and the Beckett Cup.

HANDBALL

DUBLIN CHAMPIONSHIP FOR J. AND A. CLARKE

At the Boot court on Sunday John K. and Austin Clarke (Metropolitan) defeated J. J. Kelly and M. Butler (Boot) in the Dublin Senior Hard Ball Doubles Championships final, 21-4, 17-21, 21-8, 21-12, 15-21, 21-19.

Novices' Soft Ball—S. Lynch and P. McGrath (Metropolitan) beat T. Madigan and W. Grogan (Civil Service), 21-15, 14-21, 21-15; D. Colfer (Gate) beat L. Hogan (Gate), 21-17, 21-9.

ALL-IRELAND MATCHES

At Talbot's Inch on Sunday J. J. Gilmartin and Jas. Dunne (Kilkenny), the holders, beat Hassett brothers (Tipperary) in the semi-final of the All-Ireland senior soft-ball doubles by 21-14, 21-13, 21-9. In the junior soft-ball doubles final D. McDonald and G. Ryan (Carlow) beat M. McMahon and Sergeant Rice (Tipperary), 17-21, 21-4, 14-21, 21-13, 21-11.

OLYMPIA THEATRE

"GO TO IT"

"Go To It," described as a musical-dancing-laughter revue, is the attraction at the Olympia Theatre this week. Jock Elmore, a Scottish comedian, appeared last night in a number of situations which he turned to the best account as laughter-making material. He was assisted in many of them by George Stanley, and in others the two had the aid of Cissie Whitaker.

The Accordion Serenaders gave animated performances, in which there were songs by Norma Barrie, Beryl Leslie, and Margaret McGuinness, a young Belfast artiste, who sang in another part of the revue. Tommy Porter contributed melodies, and Gene Bruce was a popular vocalist. Bert Thompson was a competent actor and an intelligent singer.

Included in the company were a group of "It" girls, vivacious dancers, who helped to keep the show moving at a lively pace.

Members of the L.S.F. going "over the top" during the week-end tactical exercises at Howth.

WHAT LIFEBOATS HAVE DONE

2,300 LIVES SAVED SINCE WAR BEGAN

Only two British lifeboatmen have been drowned on service since the outbreak of war. This is remarkable when one realises that around Great Britain and Ireland the boats have been launched 1,108 times and have saved 2,300 lives.

Launchings, an Observer representative was told, have been twice as numerous as in the first year of the last war, and the boats have saved nearly three times as many lives—more, indeed, since September, 1939, than in the last five years of peace.

The East Coast boats have had the worst experiences. The only men lost were two from the Whitby boat in a heavy sea on a dark night. Both were replacing younger men.

Some of the younger lifeboatmen have gone to the Navy and to mine-sweeping, and, on the whole, the average age of British lifeboat crews at present is higher than in peace-time. The record of service has been admirable. During the year the Royal National Lifeboat Institution has paid in rewards to its crews and launchers nearly £20,000.

The Institution is continuing its building programme. Indeed, since the war started, fourteen new boats—this is above the average—have gone to various parts of the coast. Early in the war one boat made the exceptionally hazardous voyage of 561 miles from Cowes, where she was built, to her station at Aberdeen—the longest voyage by a lifeboat during the year, though a venture by the Scillies boat into the Atlantic during February, was the longest "on service."

Nineteen lifeboats took part in the Dunkirk evacuation, and brought away several thousands of troops.

All the vessels were severely damaged, but only the Hythe boat was lost. The Eastbourne boat, abandoned, badly damaged in the Channel, was brought in later—and it was then found that attempts had been made to sink her. Something had rammed her, and she had also, it appears, been machine-gunned from the water, not from the air. It is proof of her sturdiness that she survived all this, and is now being repaired.

CHINA REINFORCES DEFENCES

PROTESTS TO FRANCE

SHANGHAI, Monday.

Several Chinese divisions are now leaving for the Indo-China border from three areas in China to strengthen the defences against the possibility of a Japanese invasion through Indo-China, according to the Chinese Press here.

Several strategic points have been occupied by Chinese defence forces. The first line defence of the region comprises 100,000 crack troops.

The Chinese Press announces that a strong protest is being lodged with the French Embassy in Chungking by the Chinese Foreign Ministry against French concessions to Japan in Indo-China.—(Reuter.)

PATROL FIGHT IN ABYSSINIA

Yesterday's Cairo communiqué stated:—

"Egypt—Yesterday, Matruh was again raided by enemy aircraft, causing some damage and casualties.

"—Kenya—One of our patrols entered Abyssinia and advanced to Gorai, where it engaged a strong force of Banda and inflicted casualties. Bura was bombed by enemy aircraft, causing little damage and no casualties.

"Sudan and Palestine—Nothing to report."—(Press Association War Special.)

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

NAIROBI, Monday.

To-night's communiqué states:—

"One of our patrols penetrated 16 miles into Abyssinia, 80 miles east of Lake Rudolf.

"A fort was found occupied by 40 Banda. It consisted of a watch-tower, surrounded with loopholed walls seven feet high.

"Several casualties were inflicted on the enemy. The Banda's return fire was inaccurate, and the patrol withdrew after a short engagement without loss."

THREE FIRES IN WEXFORD CORNFIELDS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

ROSSLARE HARBOUR, Monday.

At Wadding Island, near Rosslare, three outbreaks of fire occurred almost simultaneously yesterday in cornfields. Owing to the prolonged drought, the flames spread with great rapidity, and about sixty soldiers and numbers of the L.S.F. from Rosslare Harbour with difficulty managed to save three fields of reaped corn.

The farmhouses of Mrs. Barrett and Mr. J. Wickham were threatened, but the fire-fighters were able to divert the flames. It was two hours before the fire was brought under control.

MINISTERS VISIT FIRST-AID POSTS

The Prime Minister, Mr. de Valera, accompanied by the Minister for Defence, Mr. Oscar Traynor, and the Minister for Justice, Mr. Gerald Boland, visited three first aid posts of the Sutton Sub-branch of the Irish Red Cross Society during the Howth L.S.F. manœuvres, which took place last Sunday.

The posts were at the Howth Technical Schools, at Glenlion, Baily and at Bayswater, which is fitted with beds and hospital equipment. Here Mr. de Valera spoke to a member of the L.S.F., who had sustained a broken ankle in the course of the manœuvres.

At the conclusion of his visit he said that he was extremely pleased with the equipment and lay-out of the posts, and the work that was being done by this sub-branch of the Irish Red Cross Society.

POPE'S INTEREST IN WORLD PEACE

HYDE PARK (NEW YORK), Monday.

Mr. Myron C. Taylor, whom President Roosevelt appointed as his personal envoy to the Vatican last year, has reported to the President on the results of his mission.

He brought the President a verbal message from the Pope to the effect that "the Vatican is doing everything it possibly can to bring the world peace."—(Reuter).

GENERAL WEYGAND HAS BROKEN RIBS

DELAY TAKING AFRICAN POST

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Monday.

It is reported from Vichy that General Weygand, on account of his recent accident, is not yet able to take over his post as representative of the French Government in Africa, states a Geneva telegram to the official German News Agency. His injuries include two broken ribs. The treatment he is undergoing is expected to take three weeks.

LONELY BOUNDARY RIDER

DID NOT HEAR OF THE WAR

BRISBANE (QUEENSLAND).

A boundary rider and musterer in the lonely country north-west of Charlotte Waters, in the Northern territory, heard nothing about the war until two months ago.

Then some provisions were sent him, wrapped in a newspaper. In this he read that men were wanted for the Australian Imperial Force.

He rode 80 miles to the homestead which employed him, resigned, and set out for Brisbane.

After fourteen days continuously in the saddle he reached Camooweal, and four days later arrived at Brisbane and joined up.—(Press Association War Special.)

BODIES WASHED ASHORE IN MAYO

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BALLINA, Monday.

A body washed ashore at Dromore West to-day was identified by documents found in the pockets of the British Army uniform it was clad in. The body was that of 2nd Lieutenant Mervyn Charles Mason, M.P.C., of 22 Hyde Park Gate, London, who was aged thirty-three. In a wallet was a newspaper photograph of Miss Evelyn Blois, niece of Lord Hampton, and a cutting announcing her marriage to Lieutenant Mason; £12 in English money and nine five-franc notes, and a diary, the first entry in which was on the 4th March and the last 15th July, 1940.

At an inquest held by Dr. Rouse, Coroner for North Sligo, a verdict of death from drowning was recorded.

A second body, which was washed ashore at Lacken, Enniscrone, this evening was identified as that of Private Sampson Jones, A.M.P., late of Emsworth, Hants., aged twenty-seven, and married.

Documents found on the body signed by his officers bore the date 5th July, 1940. A verdict of death from drowning was also returned at the inquest in this case.

U.S. AID FOR RAID VICTIMS

WASHINGTON, Monday.

Mr. Norman Davis, Chairman of the American Red Cross, to-day cabled to London to buy immediately twelve mobile canteen units, costing about £16,250, to be used in areas where homes have been devastated for feeding stricken residents.

It was learned that twelve ambulances are now on the high seas en route for England.—(The Associated Press.)
